Extremely Irregular Market Following Yesterday's Wild Session on Exchange.

ABOUT SCORE OF NEW HIGHS MADE

Radio Corporation Breaks 121-2 Points but Recovers All but 5—Adams Express Off.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 2.—The "Hoover inaugural market" ran into a storm of selling orders today. The net decline in many of the popular industrials and railroad issues ranged from 1 to 5 points, while Adams Express, which soared 25 points yesterday, lost 24 of its gain. Total sales were 2,468,300 shares.

The decline wiped out only part of the brisk gain recorded earlier "boiled" under the influx of a steady stream of buying from all over the country, and from European and Latin-American capitals.

Missouri Pacific Higher.

About a score of issues, including Republic Steel, U. S. Rubber and Missouri Pacific common and preferred showed independent strength and were pushed into new high ground for the year.

Radio Corporation broke 12½ points, but recovered all but 5 of its loss. Wright Aeronautical closed 5 points lower, and U. S. Steel common, Sears Roebuck, Columbia Graphaphone, General Electric and National Cash Register closed 2 to 3½ points lower.

The average of 50 industrial shares closed .7 of a point lower, 20 railroad shares .1 of a point down and 20 of utilities .1 of a point lower.

Renewed fears that Federal Reserve authorities would take further measures to curtail the volume of brokers' loans were an important factor in the day's selling movement. There was another series of favorable 1928 earnings reports.

Radio (old stock) broke 12½ points to 392½ and then snapped back to around the 400 level. Wright Aeronautical at one time sold 7 points lower, American Railways Express and A. M. Byers 6, National Cash Register 5 and Columbia Graphophone, General Electric, Anaconda Copper, Kennecott, American Smelting, Cerro de Pasco, U. S. Steel and Union Carbide sold down 3 to 4 points at one time.

There were several outstanding strong spots. Buffalo & Susquehanna jumped to a new high.

Some New Highs.

Other issues to better their previous 1929 highs were Republic Steel, Patino Mines, U. S. Rubber, Otis Steel, Equitable Office Building, American Water Works, and the Missouri Pacific issues.

Raising of the Dallas Federal Reserve Bank rate to the 5 per cent level prevailing in the majority of other central institutions and the annual report of the Federal Reserve Board, repeating its warning against credit inflation, had a restraining effect on bullish enthusiasm. Fears also were expressed in some quarters that the recent advances in the price of red metal might, if carried further, result in a marked lightening of consumer demands.

The route lies over Tampico, Brownsville, Galveston, New Orleans, Montgomery, Ala., Atlanta, and Richmond.

PRESIDENT PROUD OF "MINDING HIS OWN BUSINESS"

Retiring Chief Executive Thus Expresses His View of Administration in Final Press Conference.

ANXIOUS TO RETURN TO HIS OLD HOME

This Is Same as Any Other Work Day at White House, but Many Friends Call.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Frankly happy that he and Mrs. Coolidge are about to return to the serenity of their old Northampton home, President Coolidge was busy today with last-minute accumulation of Government business, urged on by a realization of much to be done and the fact that it was his last full working day as chief executive of the nation.

Awaiting his action were nearly 150 pieces of legislation, lacking only his signature to make them laws; there were numerous Federal offices to be filled; and the day's engagement calendar, standing in its embossed leather frame on the President's desk, showed a long list of Government officers, people of national prominence and close friends who wished to drop in, shake hands and bid him good-bye.

Outside the executive offices, workmen could be seen adding the final touches to the stand from which Mr. Coolidge's successor will review the parade in honor of his inauguration and a long queue of out-of-town visitors was gathering to meet the President at the last of his noon-hour receptions. But within, it was a regular business day. The President was adhering to the precept, announced early in his political career, of "doing the day's work."

Glad to Go Home.

Mr. Coolidge has made no effort to conceal the fact that his retirement from office will enable him to return to the life he likes best. Although the last eight years have seen him elevated to the highest place in the nation and have been crowded with significant events, there has always lurked in the chief executive's mind a desire, sometimes discussed with Mrs. Coolidge, to "go back home."

In his interview with the Associated Press in 1926, Mr. Coolidge mentioned his visits to the old homestead at Plymouth, Vermont, and the pleasure he derived from doing the little odd jobs that were constantly necessary, things that must be left to others when one sits in the White House surrounded by its large staff of servants.

"I like to dispense with the kind of service that it is necessary for me to have at the White House, and wait on myself," he said then. "If I find a strap broken, I like to get out the tools that are used by shoemakers, make a wax end, and repair it. I like to go out and repair the fence when it is breaking down, and mend the latch on the kitchen door."

Likes Simple Life.

It is a simple life of this kind, free from servants and secret service men that is beckoning the President to Northampton, Mass., and serving to allay his often expressed regret that he must sever the many pleasant personal associations that he has built up in Washington.

He has mentioned this reluctance many times within the last week to the many callers who have come to say good-bye, to the Washington correspondents, and finally to the members of his Cabinet.

He would not permit them to draw him into a declaration of his plans for the future or with respect to a report that he would write for the Encyclopedia Americana. He declared he contemplated making no farewell address to the American people—Washington had accomplished that task so well, he thought, that there was no need of his attempting it—and finally he told the correspondents that the one outstanding and significant achievement of his stay in the White House had been minding his own business.

Two events remain on the Coolidge social calendar. Tonight the members of the Cabinet and their wives will be dinner guests at the White House; and tomorrow evening, Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge will be hosts at dinner to the President-elect and Mrs. Hoover, Senator Curtis and his sister, Mrs. Edward H. Gann.

COOLIDGE SIGNS 5-YEAR DRY LAW PENALTY MEASURE

President Approves Jones Measure Increasing Sentences and Raising Fines to $10,000 Maximum.

MISAPPREHENSIONS ABOUT IT, HE SAYS

It Is Explained to Him That by Making Offenses Felonies Foreigners Can Be Deported.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—President Coolidge today signed the Jones bill increasing penalties for prohibition law violation to a maximum of five years' imprisonment and $10,000 fine.

The measure was the subject of stormy debate in both House and Senate where it met the stern opposition of wets.

At the White House it was explained that President Coolidge felt that many were under a misapprehension regarding the purpose of the bill. Its sponsors had explained to Mr. Coolidge that while many persistent violators of the Volstead law were foreigners, there was nothing in that statute enabling the immigration authorities to deport them. By increasing the maximum penalty and making violations a felony, the immigration authorities will have the power to deport alien violators.

The measure makes a distinction, which it leaves to the discretion of the courts, between occasional first offenders and habitual violators of the prohibition laws.

The Jones bill reads:

"Whenever a penalty or penalties are prescribed in a criminal prosecution by the National Prohibition act, as amended and supplemented, for the manufacture, sale, transportation, impoftation or exportation of intoxicating liquor, as edfined by Section 1, Title II, of the National Prohibition act, the penalty imposed for each such offense shall be a fine not to exceed $10,000 or imprisonment not to exceed five years, or both; provided, that it is the intent of Congress that the Court, in imposing sentences hereunder, should discriminate between casual and slight violations and habitual sales of intoxicating liquor, or attempts to commercialize violations of the law.

"This act shall not repeal nor eliminate any minimum penalty for the first or any subsequent offense now provided by the said National Prohibition act."

40-FOOT TUNNEL FOUND AT SING SING PRISON

Convicts Within Four Feet of Outer Wall; Work Occupies Months.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 2.—A tunnel 40 feet long and four feet square leading from a potato cellar under the mess hall in Sing Sing Prison to a point four feet from the outer wall, was discovered yesterday afternoon by Principal Keeper John Sheehy.

The prisoners needed another week to bore outside.

The only clew are two trowels, two hammers and six flashlights found in the tunnel. Sheehy noticed a lock on a grating which covers the entrance to a conduit for hot water pipes running to the bath house, had been torn from its staples. He called several guards and together they crawled into the conduit.

About half the distance to the bath house they found the entrance to the freshly dug tunnel. The underground passage had been timbered at the point where heavy delivery trucks pass frequently on a road three feet above.

Although 600 cubic feet of earth must have been removed from the tunnel, no trace of it could be found.

Prisoners are allowed to spend their evenings in the mess hall but are forbidden to enter the cellar. It is thought some of them managed to steal away and pursued their subterranean operations at odd intervals, over a period of months.

ILLINOISAN GETS COMMERCE POST, LAST TO BE FILLED

He Is President of American Steel Foundries, 61 Years Old, and Began as an Engineer.

MISSOURIAN'S CHOICE COMPLETE SURPRISE

His Selection as Secretary of Agriculture Followed Visit to President-Elect in Florida.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—All of the ten members of the Hoover Cabinet are now known.

The second of the two "surprise" appointees—Arthur M. Hyde of Missouri for Secretary of Agriculture having been the first—is Robert Patterson Lamont, Chicago manufacturer, who will take Hoover's former place at the head of the Department of Commerce. Lamont is president of the American Steel Foundries Co. and interested in several other corporations.

Confirmation of a report that Lamont had been named was obtained here shortly before noon.

The announcement of Lamont's selection created as much surprise here as did that of Hyde. No one of the many local speculators on the Cabinet had suggested that he was under consideration.

Lamont is the head of the American Steel Foundries Corporation and has other banking and manufacturing interests. He is a director of the Chicago Daily News. He is an engineer by profession, having received the degree of Bachelor of Science in engineering from the University of Michigan in 1891.

He was an engineer at the Chicago world's fair in 1891-02. During the war he was chief of the procurement division of the Ordnance Department at Washington. He was born at Detroit and is 61 years old.

The New Cabinet.

With the addition of Hyde and Lamont to the Cabinet certainties, the list now stands as follows:

Secretary of State, Henry L. Stimson of New York.

Secretary of the Treasury, Andrew W. Mellon of Pennsylvania.

Secretary of War, James W. Good of Iowa.

Attorney-General, William D. Mitchell of Minnesota.

Postmaster-General, Walter F. Brown of Ohio.

Secretary of the Navy, Charles Francis Adams of Massachusetts.

Secretary of Interior, Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur of California.

Secretary of Agriculture, Arthur M. Hyde of Missouri.

Secretary of Commerce, Robert P. Lamont of Illinois.

Secretary of Labor, James J. Davis of Pennsylvania.

Hyde arrived in Washington this afternoon. He declined to make any statement pending an official announcement of his appointment by the President-elect.

Hyde a Complete Surprise.

The news that Hyde had been chosen and had accepted took Washington by complete surprise. He had not been mentioned at all in the welter of Cabinet speculation.

Hyde's appointment will carry on the representation that Missouri has had in the Cabinet through Dwight Davis of St. Louis as Secretary of War. Davis, a Coolidge appointee, will go out. He was a guest of the President-elect at luncheon yesterday. Hoover is thought to have him in mind for an ambassadorship.

Hyde, it was learned today, had been under consideration for a Cabinet post for several weeks, but the final decision to place him at the head of the Department of Agriculture was reached only within the last few days, after numerous other aspirants had been crossed off the list.

Called on Hoover in Florida.

It was disclosed that Hyde, by Hoover's invitation, called upon the President-elect during his recent stay at Miami Beach and had dinner with him. The visit went unnoticed. Presumably it was then

PURCHASE OF LOEW'S, INC., BY WILLIAM FOX REPORTED

Rumor of Theatrical Merger, Hitherto Denied, Are Renewed in Wall Street.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 2.—It was reported in Wall Street today that the William Fox interests had purchased control of Loew's, Inc., from the estate of Marcus Loew.

Rumors of an impending merger of the Fox and Loew theatrical interests have been current in Wall Street for several days, but have been denied by Fox. Wall Street's latest information was that Fox had purchased the Loew estate holdings at $120 a share and had acquired other holdings which would assure his control of the company.

BOY, 12, FLYING WITH FATHER FROM WICHITA TO BOSTON

Everett Keely, 12 years old, of Taunton, Mass., today is flying from Wichita, Kan., to Boston, in a plane piloted by his father, Ray Keely, president of the Keely-King Aircraft Co. of Taunton.

The plane, an open Travel-Air biplane, was refueled at Parks Airport, near East St. Louis, at 9 a. m. Keely and his son left Wichita before dawn and expect to reach Boston tomorrow. Young Keely will be back in school Monday, when his father will fly the plane to Bangor, Me., to deliver it to a purchaser.

HOUSE O K'S $48,000 FOR MOUNT WEATHER

By Compromise, Use of Funds for Presidential Retreat Will Be Left to Hoover.

BY RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The House late last night approved an appropriation of $48,000 for a presidential country retreat at Mount Weather, Va. The Senate, which had already approved the idea, probably will act on the amended proposition today.

The $48,000 appropriation was reinserted in the second deficiency bill by the Senate after it had been stricken from the House bill on a point of order.

The Senate and House conferees on the bill effected a compromise whereby the proposed remodeling of the abandoned Weather Bureau station in the Blue Ridge Mountains was made contingent on the desire of Mr. Hoover. He may use the money or not.

There was no discussion of the proposal in the House last night. The entire deficiency bill was adopted without a record vote. By the action of the House and Senate conferees President Coolidge will be able to sign the bill which contains the proposal he first advanced in his letter in the anniversary edition of the Post-Dispatch.

"HOW ARE CROPS?" REED'S SALUTATION TO EX-GOV. HYDE

Puts Query "As One Dirt Farmer to Another," When Asked to Comment on Appointment.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Senator Reed of Missouri, when asked today to comment on the selection of Arthur M. Hyde as Secretary of Agriculture, put his reply in the form of a salutation to Hyde.

He said: "As one dirt farmer to another, I say, "Shake, Arthur. How are your crops:' "

Reed will not attend the Hoover-Curtis inauguration but will go to New York tomorrow morning on law business.

SERUM EXPECTED TO CURE HYDROPHOBIA DISCOVERED

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 2.—A serum which is expected to prevent and cure hydrophobia has been developed at the County Hospital.

Dr. Maurice L. Blatt and Dr. Samuel J. Hoffman announced today that after a year's research they have discovered an anti-toxin which has successfully halted development of rabies in laboratory tests with animals and which they think will cure human cases.

The principle, it was explained, is the same as that used for treatment of scarlet fever and diphtheria cases, in which the serum of an immunized animal is used.

JURY DISAGREES IN $500,000 SUIT OVER 'LA BELLE'

Unable to Decide Whether Hahn Painting Is Original Leonardo or Copy—Out More Than 14 Hours.

STANDS 9 TO 3 AGAINST DUVEEN

Trial Lasting Four Weeks Costs County $10,000—Crowd in Formal Dress Awaits Verdict.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 2.—Unable to decide whether the painting "La Belle Feronniere" owned by Mrs. Andree Lardoux Hahn of Kansas City, Mo., was the work of Leonardo da Vinci or a copy, a Supreme Court jury that had been debating the question for 14 hours and 17 minutes reported a disagreement at 5:30 o'clock this morning and was released.

Mrs. Hahn sued Sir Joseph Duveen, British art expert, for $500,000, contending that he committed slander of title when in 1920 he said her painting was not a genuine Leonardo. This statement, she alleged, prevented sale of the painting to the Kansas City Art Institute for $250,000.

James S. Bowdoin, foreman of the jury, said the ballots showed a vote of nine to three for Mrs. Hahn throughout the deliberations.

Justice Black in his charge pointed out it was essential for the jury to determine whether the Hahn painting was genuine and that the burden of proving this rested on the plaintiff. He also declared that if Duveen's statement was false, the jury must believe it was made with malicious intent. The case went to the jury at 3:13 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Trial Costs County $10,000.

The jury which for four weeks had been hearing testimony in the case, returned several times for instruction. At 3:30 this morning they reported inabilty to reach an agreement, but were asked by Justice Black to deliberate a while longer, as the trial had cost the county more than $10,000.

At midnight, men and women in evening attire were sauntering into the courtroom, giving it almost a night club atmosphere, and Supreme Court Justice Black, wearing a Tuxedo, inspected a sheaf of papers on his desk and anxiously awarded the verdict.

Jury Asks for Data.

At 9:30 o'clock the jurors had a stenographer reread to them the charge made earlier by Justice Black and had sent to the jury room copies of other works of Da Vinci. At 1:30 a. m. there was sent into the jury room a copy of the World of June 17, 192., which contained Sir Joseph's statement concerning "La Belle Feronniere."

This gave evidence of the struggle going on within the minds of the jurors, who during the last four weeks have listened to 17 days of testimony and argument.

At 12:10 o'clock the smartly attired spectators still were drifting in and Duveen was nervously pacing the corridor, nodding in acknowledgment to the greetings of newcomers.

The jurors asked Justice Black in a note at 1:45 o'clock this morning whether they could render a verdict making a money award to Mrs. Hahn but stating that there was in their minds a reasonable doubt that the Hahn painting was a Da Vinci.

Justice Black replied that a reasonable doubt had nothing to do with a civil case and that the plaintiff must only prove a "fair preponderance of the credible evidence in the case."

The jury then returned to resume its deliberations.

COMPROMISE ON PARKS BILL

Senate and House Conferees Agree on Interior Department Measure.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 2. — A compromise was reached by Senate and House conferees today on the Interior Department appropriation bill which has been in deadlock for six weeks. The two houses have been at odds over the provision voted by the House empowering the Interior Secretary to condemn property in national parks.

Senators Walsh and Wheeler (Dems.) of Montana, have stubbornly opposed the proposal and the Senate has upheld them on several votes. The compromise reached today by conferees would exempt private dwellings and buildings for religious purposes from the terms of the condemnation provisions. The House adopted the conference reports.

HOOVER COMPLETES HIS CABINET WITH LAMONT AND HYDE

that the President-elect settled for himself the question of Hyde's availability.

Senator-elect Roscoe Patterson of Missouri, a political associate of Hyde, was a caller at the Hoover home last evening. Patterson evaded questions as to his talk with the President-elect, but it was learned from other sources that he expressed gratification at Hyde's selection.

Hyde has not been nationally known in connection with the farm problem. President-elect Hoover, however, is understood to have been favorably impressed with his rural-life program as Governor. He is described as having shown a keen interest in good roads and consolidated schools.

Among those Missourians who were unprepared for the appointment, it was recalled that in the unsuccessful campaign of former Senator George Williams against Harry B. Hawes for the Senate in 1926, Hyde praised Williams for his vote in favor of the McNary-Haugen bill.

Hoover, in the Cabinet and as a candidate, stood against this measure, and in the special session of Congress to be called in April he will offer a farm relief program based on principles which the McNary-Haugenites have declared inadequate.

Assailed When Governor by Reed.

Hyde was Governor of Missouri from 1921 to 1925. It was in this period that James A. Reed ran for re-election to the Senate and in the course of his hard-hitting campaign assailed the Republican State administration without mercy.

In 1926, in the Williams-Hawes fight, Hyde made a speech which Senator Reed interpreted as casting a slur upon the Busch family of St. Louis. Reed made a scorching reply which contributed materially to the defeat of the Republican candidate. Hyde said that his words had been deliberately misconstrued.

The Missouri delegation to the Republican convention at Cleveland in 1924 carried along a vice presidential boom for Hyde, but was unable to inflate it to any appreciable extent.

Hyde left the Republican party in 1912 and ran for Attorney General on the Progressive ticket. He came back to the regular Republican reservation two years later.

Supported Lowden.

In the last Republican campaign for the presidential nomination, Hyde was with the Missouri group that supported Frank O. Lowden, though it was said here today that he showed himself at the same time to be well disposed toward Hoover. It was recalled in this connection that James A. Finch of New Madrid, one of Hyde's friends who had held office under him, was the Lowden manager in Missouri.

Hyde is a bone-dry, and he made his race for the governorship in 1920 on a dry platform.

According to biographical data obtained from Hyde's friends here, he is both a lawyer and a farm owner, has a large automobile agency at his home at Trenton, and is the president of the Sentinel Life Insurance Co. of Missouri.

He was born at Princeton, Mo., July 12, 1877, and took an A. B. degree from the University of Michigan and a degree in law from the State University of Iowa. He is married and has one daughter, Caroline.

From Princeton, where he practiced law for 15 years and served a term as Mayor, he moved to Trenton in 1915. He is a trustee of Missouri Wesleyan College, a Methodist, a Mason and an Odd Fellow.

Choice of Hyde Praised.

Representative L. J. Dickinson (Rep.), of Iowa, one of the principal sponsors of the McNary-Haugen bill in the House and a leader of the farm bloc, commended the selection of Hyde.

"He has always been a supporter of farm relief," said the Iowan, "and I think that his appointment will be generally pleasing to the Middle West. Gov. Hyde was a supporter of Lowden for the Republican presidential nomination and a believer in the McNary-Haugen bill."

Senator Brookhart (Rep.), Iowa, a member of the Senate farm bloc, thought Hyde's appointment "very satisfactory."

Senator McNary (Rep.), Oregon, chairman of the Senate Committee on Agriculture and one of the authors of the McNary-Haugen bill, pronounced the appointment as agreeable to him, "especially as Gov. Hyde was a supporter of the McNary-Haugen bill."

Missouri House Compliments Hoover on Appointment of Hyde.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 2.—The Missouri House of Representatives today adopted a resolution expressing appreciation to President-elect Hoover for selecting former Gov. Hyde for Secretary of Agriculture and thus recognizing Missouri in his Cabinet. The resolution, unanimously adopted, was presented by Representative Stitt of Grundy County, in which Trenton, Hyde's home is situated. Copies of the resolution were wired to the President-elect and to Hyde at Washington.

The lists will be checked against those of the license office to determine those who failed to comply with yesterday's orders.

CONVICTION OF LAWYER AS BANK ROBBER UPHELD

Supreme Court Rules Roy Schooley Must Serve 10-Year Sentence for Festus Holdup.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 2.—The conviction of Roy Schooley, lawyer, Republican politician, and one-time candidate for Prosecuting Attorney of St. Louis County, of participation in the robbery of the Citizens' Bank of Festus, Jefferson County, was affirmed today by Division No. 2 of the Missouri Supreme Court and he must serve his 10-year sentence in the penitentiary.

This is the second conviction affirmed in recent months by the Supreme Court in this robbery, which was planned in Schooley's law office in Wellston.

The conviction and eight-year sentence of Francis T. Ball, as an accomplice, was upheld last December.

Most of the $26,526 loot obtained in the robbery on Sept. 25, 1926, was recovered.

Trust Officer Gets New Trial.

Schooley's case was one of 40 criminal and civil appeals in which opinions were delivered today by Division No. 2. Among other cases were the following: Roy T. Myers, secretary of the defunct Citizens' Trust Co. of Gorin, Mo., whose conviction and prison sentence for acceptance of deposits when he knew the bank was insolvent, was reversed and a new trial ordered, because the trial Judge failed to grant a motion for a change of venue, after prejudice on the part of the Judge was alleged.

Disclosures by Myers resulted in an investigation of the State Finance Department in 1925.

The reversal today followed a rehearing of a previous Supreme Court decision affirming his conviction.

New Trial for Springfield Slayer.

Newell M. (Dobb) Adams of Springfield, Mo., under death sentence for murder of a policeman, after he had shot and stabbed three other persons, new trial ordered because the trial Judge imposed the death sentence when the jury which had found Adams guilty of first degree murder, was unable to agree upon the punishment.

A dissent from this ruling by one of the Judges will result in a rehearing by court en banc.

Edwin Lomax, former banker of Brookfield, Mo., under five years sentence for embezzlement of $45,334 of funds of the Brookfield School District affirmed.

Henry Kubler, St. Louis, under five-year sentence for a statutory offence against a young girl, affirmed.

Edward Miller, St. Louis, under six-year sentence for forcibly taking away a child, with intent to conceal the child from its parents, affirmed.

Schooley was identified as one of three men who held up the Citizens' Bank of Festus. A co-defendant who was used as a witness by the State testified the robbery was planned in Schooley's office and that Schooley was one of the three men who took part in the actual robbery.

Jefferson County officers pursued the automobile in which the robbers fled, to a club house on the bank of Big River, about 30 miles from Festus, and there arrested Schooley and others.

A large part of the money and bonds stolen from the bank was recovered from places where it had been hidden near this clubhouse. Schooley offered an alibi. His attorneys presented numerous technical claims of error in the appeal, all of which were overruled by Judge David E. Blair, who wrote the opinion. The other judges concurred.

A confession by Myers concerning irregularities in the Citizens Trust Co. of Gorin, made to former Attorney-General Robert W. Otto, under a promise of immunity from prosecution, resulted in removal of Frank C. Millspaugh as State Finance Commissioner and an investigation of the Finance Department in 1925. Charges were filed against Myers in Scotland County, however, and he was tried in Adair County on a change of venue.

His defense was based on the promise of immunity.

Curtis A. Betts, of the Post-Dispatch staff, who accompanied Otto to El Paso, Tex., and was present when Myers' confession was obtained, corroborated Myers' testimony that immunity had been promised to him.

Otto denied the promise.

Reversal on Venue Issue.

The immunity promise was one of the defense points on appeal, but the Court did not pass upon that question in reversing the conviction.

Commissioner Berryman Henwood, who wrote the opinion, held the trial judge erred in not granting a motion for change of venue which was supported by affidavits alleging prejudice on the part of the Judge.

He held that under the law governing changes of venue and disqualification of judges the motion should have been granted.

The trial judge was Circuit Judge James A. Cooley of Kirksville, recently appointed a Commissioner of the Supreme Court.

The decision awarding a new trial to Adams in the Springfield murder cases raises a point not heretofore ruled upon by the Missouri Supreme Court, and will be transferred to court en banc for consideration of the entire court, as a result of a dissent by Judge Blair.

Adams killed patrolman F. M. Dearmond, who was attempting to arrest Adams after he had shot, stabbed and beaten his mother-in-law, beaten and stabbed a sister-in-law, and shot another woman, because he thought they were withholding from him the whereabouts of his wife, from whom he was estranged. He was tried in Polk County, on a change of venue.

The jury found him guilty of first degree murder but reported it was unable to agree on one of the alternative punishments of death or life imprisonment.

10 for Death Penalty.

The Judge polled the jury, learned 10 were for the death penalty, and sentenced Adams to be hanged.

Commissioner Walter N. Davis, who wrote the opinion, held the section of the law relating to first degree murder penalties made it mandatory for the jury to assess the punishment.

Another section of the law, enacted in 1925, provides that when a jury returns a verdict of guilty, but cannot agree on the penalty, the trial judge shall fix the punishment. Davis held this section applied only to second degree murder and manslaughter cases, although the section contains no language so limiting it.

Davis stated he was of the opinion, due to the importance of a verdict of death or life imprisonment, that the Legislature had intended to give only to juries the power to decide upon the penalty, in a trial where a first degree murder verdict results.

The commissioner said no previous rulings had been found dealing directly with the point involved.

Edward Miller of St. Louis, was convicted of forcibly carrying off a 7-year-old girl, on her way to school, Nov. 2, 1926. A purported confession introduced in evidence, concerned mistreatment of the child, but the formal charge of which he was convicted was carrying away a child with intent to detain and conceal the child from its parents. Commissioner Henwood affirmed the conviction.

Schooley Arrested by County Deputy Sheriffs.

Roy Schooley was taken into custody by St. Louis County deputy sheriffs, yesterday, and is now being held at the county jail in Clayton. This action was taken after advance word had been received of the affirmation of his sentence by the Missouri Supreme Court.

EXTRA DRY LAW FUNDS FIXED AT $2,977,000

This Compromise Between House and Senate Makes Total Appropriation $18000,000.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Its principal worries over as a result of last minute concessions and compromises on major legislation, the seventieth Congress was almost ready to close its doors today and turn out to see the Hoover inaugural.

Of course, much remained to be done, and the fall of the gavel on Monday threatens to kill many eleventh-hour nominations and minor bills, but leaders were breathing easier for the first time in weeks after the Senate and House at the first twin night session of the winter reached an agreement on the controversial proposal for an increase in prohibition enforcement funds and broke the deadlock on the radio bill.

The first move toward relieving the clogged machinery was the compromise on the prohibition item. The amount finally agreed upon was $2,977,000, exclusive of an additional $250,000 for a survey of enforcement conditions by a commission to be appointed by President-elect Hoover. These funds were included in the two pending deficiency measures and the House last night gave approval to the conference report on one of these bills which carries more than $1,000,000 of the total.

The Senate must act on that report as well as the conference agreement on the first deficiency measure carrying the balance of the appropriation. The House will complete congressional action on this bill.

$18,000,000 for Dry Enforcement.

As a result of the compromise on the $2,977,000 item, which brings the total direct appropriations for the next fiscal year for dry law enforcement to approximately $18,000,000, the Congress finally ditched the controverted $24,000,000 proposal of Senator Harris (Dem.) of Georgia, which the Senate inserted in the first deficiency bill. The total, however, was slightly higher than the $2,727,000 figure recommended by President Coolidge and which the House approved in passing the second deficiency bill.

11 NATIONS FILE ACCEPTANCES OF KELLOGG TREATY

Concerted Action Tribute to Retiring U. S. Secretary of State Who Suggested Peace Pact.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Eleven nations deposited their ratifications of the Kellogg Anti-War treaty at the State Department today thereby completing the final act in their pledge for the renunciation of war. When the four remaining original signatory countries deposit their ratifications, the treaty will go into force.

In a brief ceremony Secretary of State Kellogg signed for the United States and Ambassador Von Prittwitz then signed for Germany. Sir Esme Howard, the British Ambassador, placed his signature for Great Britain and Northern Ireland, as well as for Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and India. Ambassador De Martino signed for Italy and was followed by the Canadian Minister, Vincent Massey; the Irish Free State Charge D'Affaires, W. J. B. Macauley, and the Czecho-Slovakian Minister, Ferdinand Veverka.

There were no formal remarks attending the ceremony but while the seals were being attached to the document and impressed with the signet rings of the diplomats, Kellogg moved about smilingly chatting with each country's representative. Today's concerted action was a compliment to Secretary Kellogg.

The Secretary said the ratifications of the four other original signatory nations were expected soon. That of Poland is now on its way to Washington from Warsaw by special messenger. France has completed its ratification and with those of Belgium and Japan, it is expected in Washington in a short time. Kellogg announced he had received word also of the ratification by Denmark and the Netherlands.

Holland Chamber Votes to Adhere to Treaty.

THE HAGUE, Holland, March 2.—The second chamber of the States-General yesterday adopted a bill of adherence to the Kellogg pact for renunciation of war.

TWO WOMEN, MAN AND BABY BURNED TO DEATH IN HOME

Only Survivor of Fire Near Steubenville, O., Says He Leaped From Window.

By the Associated Press.

STEUBENVILLE, O., March 2.—Four persons were burned to death when fire destroyed the home of William Primm, 12 miles southwest of here, early today. The dead: Mrs. William Primm, 43 years old; Mrs. Charles Crawford, 25, Mrs. Primm's daughter; Charles Crawford, 27, son-in-law, and the Crawford baby. William Primm, a barber, was the only survivor and he is in a serious condition at Ohio Valley Hospital here.

Information of the fire did not reach here until after neighbors had found Primm lying on the ground in a state of collapse near the ruins of the house. According to authorities, Primm said he was awakened early today by smoke, and when he arose he discovered the lower part of the house, including the stairway, in flames. He said he then called his son-in-law, aroused others, leaped from a window, and called to his son-in-law to drop the others down to him. He asserted that no one appeared at the window and a few minutes later the house fell in. Primm said he then fainted.

AUTO FUMES ENTER HOME, MAN AND DAUGHTER KILLED

Two Other Members of Family Made Ill by Gas From Garage Under House.

MONTREAL, March 2.—Carbon monoxide gas from an automobile in a garage beneath the family home spread through the house and took the lives of Philip W. K. Robertson, assistant sales manager of the International Pulp and Paper Co., and his daughter, Phyllis, 5 years old, and sent two other members of the family and a maid to the hospital yesterday.

Mrs. Robertson, a son, Kenneth, 4, and the maid are not seriously ill. The three were in the house early in the morning when the body of the father was found in the garage and that of the daughter on the floor of the dining room. Robertson was 49.

Ptomaine poisoning was first suggested as the cause of the tragedy, but an autopsy later disclosed that the victims were killed by the fumes from the automobile, which had been left running in the closed garage the previous afternoon.

HOOVER RESTS AS CROWDS GATHER FOR INAUGURATION

Cabinet Chosen, Address Ready — Coolidge, Dawes and Curtis Busy With Legislation.

RAIN DRENCHES THE DECORATIONS

Followed by Snow Which Melts as It Falls and Bad Weather Is Forecast for Monday.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—A mixture of rain and snow began falling here this afternoon, drenching the decorations which had been placed about the city for the inauguration of Herbert Hoover as President next Monday.

The snow began falling soon after noon. It followed a steady rain which had lasted all morning. The temperature was moderate, however, and the snow melted as fast as it fell. Weather predictions for Monday morning were "probably rain," although hope was held out that the rain would cease before noon, when Hoover will be inducted into office.

Arriving delegates, coming in by train and automobile, were drenched by the downpour.

Aerial Parade Threatened.

Inaugural committee officials said the unfavorable turn would not greatly dim the magnificence of Monday's inaugural spectacle. Many thousands already are here, and thousands more are on the way, apparently prepared to take their chances in the unroofed stands which cluster about the Capitol plaza and stretch along the parade line to the White House.

One feature of uncertainty, however, somewhat worried those in charge of plans for a great aerial display on Monday above the Capitol. Bolling Field, base for the several score of aircraft that are to make up Hoover's air escort of honor, was rain soaked this afternoon, and ground officials feared that further rain might make landing field conditions hazardous.

Hoover Is Resting.

His Cabinet complete, and his inaugural address ready for delivery, the President-elect himself had for the moment one of the quietest roles of all in the tumult of last preparations. After trying weeks, he found an opportunity for a season of rest with his family in the red brick house on S street from which he goes 48 hours hence to the responsibilities of the White House.

Meantime, at the executive offices a mile away, President Coolidge summoned his energies for a full day's work as the clock ticked away the last working hours of a political career which began 30 years ago. The usual last-minute grist of bills and resolutions from Congress heaped his desk high. He kept to the task fate had set for him, but none who knew him doubted that his thoughts already were wandering longingly toward the hour when he could "go back home" to Northampton.

Day of Work for Coolidge.

Officially, the inaugural program mapped out by the town fathers of Washington began today, but the initial offerings merely were intended to give the visitors something to busy themselves with while they waited for the great day. In this curtain-raiser the army and navy were the chief actors, the aviators of both services having been called upon to do stunts over nearby aviation fields while the cavalry at Fort Myer, across the river, was mustered for an exhibition drill.

Several of the State societies announced open house during afternoon and evening, and Washington society fluttered over a round of teas and dances.

Dawes and Curtis Busy.

Two of the central figures in the inaugural drama were concerned intimately with the final log-jam of bills in Congress. One of them, Vice President Dawes, found the concluding hours of his four years' service as presiding officer of the Senate only a little less stirring than that opening session in 1925, when he undertook the task—still unfinished—of reforming Senate rules. The other, Curtis of Kansas, still a Senator but soon to be Vice President, chose to stay out the tenure of his senatorial leadership, and keep the long hours with his colleagues.

Tonight Dawes will be the guest of the Gridiron Club at a special dinner in his honor, while Coolidge entertains the Cabinet at the White House.

Monday's ceremonies will begin soon after 10 a. m. and it may be 5 p. m. before thge last unit of the long parade has passed the presidential stand, and President Hoover has turned from plaudits of the crowd to the waiting desk within the White House.

The list of those who will be in the parade grew hourly today as the Inaugural Committee received applications from marching clubs and other arriving delegations. No accurate estimate of the number of visitors was available, but weary hotel clerks and swamped taxicab starters agreed that when the crowd got itself all together it would be one of the greatest ever.

Schedule of Inaugural Events.

Following is the schedule of events Monday:

11 a. m.—Hoover and Curtis arrive at the White House.

11:30—President and Mrs. Coolidge, Mr. and Mrs. Hoover, Senator Curtis and his sister, Mrs. Edward H. Gann, leave the White House for the Capitol.

12—The Senate is convened and Senator Curtis takes oath of office as Vice President and delivers his inaugural address.

1 p. m.—Hoover is inducted into office by Chief Justice Taft and then delivers his inaugural address.

2—Mr. and Mrs. Hoover, Curtis and Mrs. Gann return on Pennsylvania avenue to the White House. Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge go to Union Station to entrain for Northampton, Mass.

2:30—Parade forms at the Peace Monument in front of the Capitol Plaza and starts up Pennsylvania avenue.

3 (or shortly thereafter)—Mr. and Mrs. Hoover, Curtis and Mrs. Gann and the rest of the presidential party mount the reviewing stand in front of the White House to review the parade.

5 (or shortly thereafter)—Last units of parade pass the reviewing stand and Mr. and Mrs. Hoover return to the White House. Curtis and Mrs. Gann go to the Vice Presidential suite at the Mayflower Hotel.

8—Fireworks display on the monument grounds, watched by Hoover from the White House.

9—Charity Ball at the Washington Auditorium begins. Curtis and Mrs. Gann will attend. Other receptions and balls will begin.

SHOT AFTER HOLDING JUDGE AT BAY IN COURT

Man, Talking Wildly, Invades Detroit Chambers With Two Pistols.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., March 2.—Roy A. Wynkoop, 46 years old, of Detroit, was shot and slightly wounded by a deputy sheriff in the courtroom of Circuit Judge Fred S. Lamb in the county building here shortly before noon today after he had held Judge Lamb and August Blessing, his clerk, at bay for a quarter of an hour.

Court had recessed for luncheon when Wynkoop, talking wildly and brandishing two pistols, invaded the chambers. Judge Lamb and Blessing were alone in the courtroom when Wynkoop came in.

Pointing one pistol at Judge Lamb and the other at Blessing Wynkoop houted: "I have come for justice and I want you to sign this order."

Police reserves were called and with the aid of deputy sheriffs rescued the Judge and subdued Wynkoop with tear gas. One of the deputies fired a. Wynkoop when he threatened to shoot it out with the officers.

Judge Lamb's home bench is in Cadillac, Mich., but he was sitting as a visiting judge on the Wayne County bench.

GETS SIX MONTHS FOR FALSE AFFIDAVIT ON PARENTS' BOND

Ernest Sita Swore He Owned Property Really Held in Name of His Wife.

Ernest Sita, 720 Aubert avenue, was sentenced to six months in the workhouse by Judge Butler in the Court of Criminal Correction yesterday for making a false affidavit on an appeal bond for his parents, with whom he lives.

Sita, as surety on an appeal bond arising from a $104.75 judgment against his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carmelo Sita, awarded a plumber in Justice of the Peace Court June 25, 1928, swore he owned property worth $6500 at 3725 Blow street, and in addition had $8000 in cash above all liabilities.

Examination of the records showed the property was that of Sita's wife and Sita admitted in court that his only possessions were a used truck and two suits of clothes.

INDIANS ON WAY TO THE INAUGURATION

Band of 108 Passes Through St. Louis to Escort Curtis During Ceremonies.

An expedition of 100 per cent Americans, 108 Indians, braves and women, arrived in St. Louis from Oklahoma at 7:30 o'clock this morning. They had breakfast at Union Station, then hurried for the special train which is taking them to Washington for the inauguration on Monday of the next of the Great White Fathers.

Their main function at the celebration, says Chief White Buffalo, will be to act as a personal escort to Senator Curtis, the Vice President-elect who has Indian blood.

It is 1929 and conditions are reversed. For the scout who accompanies this expedition is a man who not only knows the West but is not unfamiliar with the East. He is Gordon W. Lillie of Pawnee, Ok., who is better known as "Pawnee Bill." This Pawnee Bill, by the way, is the original Pawnee Bill, a man who had much to do with the settling of Oklahoma, a fellow who was himself adopted by the Pawnee tribe.

It was the impression of a reporter who talked with the Indians that some of their women looked just a bit incongruous in their so-called native garb. Of about 25 women in the party, a dozen of them were so attired, but bobbed hair was noticed, and that bobbed hair was "permanently" treated. There was, in cases, a flapper touch.

As for the braves, most of them contented themselves with a great white sombrero to denote their aboriginal and Western condition, but a few were heroically attired with bright blankets swung about their shoulders.

There were six chiefs among the men, and their leader is Chief White Buffalo of Tulsa, a Winnebago, whose American name is Mr. Bright Roddy. With him is his pretty wife, a Cherokee. In all, 23 tribes are represented. The expedition is self-supporting, for most of its members have come by the white man's gold via Oklahoma oil.

Though they all didn't wear them, each chief and brave, and squaw and maid in the party has his or her Indian costume. They will don them in full on Monday, and in this regalia, escort the first vice-Great White Father who ever has been Red.

GIVES BOGUS CHECK OF $112 FOR AN ARTIFICIAL LIMB

Man Who Had Lost Arm Uses This Method to Get $12 Change.

A man about 35 yeras old who had lost his left arm entered the J. E. Hanger Artificial Limb Co., 1914 Olive street, on Feb. 19 and said he wanted to buy an artificial arm. He looked over samples and selected one costing $175.

The firm took his measurements and agreed to manufacture the arm for a down payment of $100. The man wrote a check for $112, took the $12 change and departed, saying he would call for his purchase.

He didn't come back, but the check did, and the police are now looking for the man. The name and address he gave were found to be false.

M'KELLAR DENOUNCES MELLON TAX REFUNDS

Says He Will Oppose Confirmation of Treasury Secretary in Hoover Cabinet.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—A vigorous attack on Secretary of the Treasury Mellon was made in the Senate today by Senator McKellar (Dem.), Tennessee, who complained of "excessive" tax refunds allowed by the Treasury. He said that if President-elect Hoover renames Mellon he will oppose confirmation, "because he isn't qualified under the law to hold office and because he is inefficient."

"He (Mellon) is not a faithful public servant," McKellar shouted. "He has allowed refunds of $3,500,000,000 in his eight years of service. Any man who has made mistakes of that size ought to be discharged."

"Has it occurred to the Senator," interposed Senator David A. Reed (Rep.), Pennsylvania, "that most of these refunds were on taxes illegally collected in 1918 and 1919 and that Mr. Mellon was not in office then?"

"I think that is so," said McKellar, renewing his denunciation of Mellon, against whom he said he was not "personally" opposed.

McKellar was protesting against modification of his amendment to the deficiency appropriation bill proposing public hearing on tax refund cases. Senate and House conferees modified this to provide only for publication of tax refund decisions.

McKellar declared that Mellon was "probably more engaged in the liquor business in this country than any other man directly or indirectly."

During the presidential campaign Mellon denied he was interested in the liquor business in any way. He said that he had acquired some stock of a distillery in an ordinary business transaction years ago but had disposed of it before the national prohibition law was enacted.

PENCIL IN INTESTINE 60 YEARS

Man Did Not Know It Until He Was Operated On.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—James H. Nicewarmer is 62 years old, but he has just learned that since childhood a pencil, several inches long, has reposed in his intestines.

Nicewarmer, a resident of Charlestown, W. Va., was operated upon here by Dr. H. A. Wood for peritonitis and the pencil was found. The theory was advanced that he had swallowed it when a child and that it has remained there since without causing trouble.

STATE WILL GET ITS $45,000 IN CLOSED PAGE BANK

Supreme Court Holds Auto Funds Placed There a Preferred Claim to Be Paid in Full.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 2.—State automobile license funds placed by Secretary of State Charles U. Becker, in the Page Bank of St. Louis County early in 1927, a few weeks before the bank failed, were illegally deposited by Becker, the Missouri Supreme Court ruled today, but the State's demand for the $45,579 balance in the deposit was held a preferred claim to be paid in full from assets of the defunct bank.

The Supreme Court ruled the deposit in effect was a trust fund even though illegally deposited, and that the bank management, knowing the funds belonged to the State, in effect became a trustee for the deposit. Under the law a trust is chargeable as a preferred claim against an insolvent estate, the court held, and the State was held to be entitled to repayment in full.

This ruling reverses a decision of the St. Louis County Circuit Court that the State was not entitled to priority in collection of its claim and must take its chances along with the depositors and other creditors.

Depositors Lose by Ruling.

Allowance of the State claim as a preferred one against the remaining assets will reduce the percentage of recovery by the depositors.

The controversy over the fund grew out of Becker's practice of depositing automobile license fee collections in banks personally selected by him for varying periods, before transmitting the funnds to the State Treasurer. Becker received interest of 2 per cent on the daily balances, which was remitted to the State Treasury, but the interest rate on funds in the regular State depositories averaged 3.2 per cent on daily balances.

The law required that such fees collected by Becker's department here and at branch offices in cities over the State, be promptly transmitted to the Treasurer.

Gov. Baker ordered an investigation by Attorney General Gentry, following failure in August, 1926, of a bank in Englewood, Mo., in which Becker had a similar deposit of about $25,000.

Gentry held Becker's practice was illegal and that the money should be forwarded immediately to the State Treasury.

He held Becker had no authority to select depositories for the funds.

Becker obtained passage of a law by the 1927 Legislature, which authorized him to select depositories for automobile license fees collected at the branch offices.

This law eliminated the former requirement of prompt transmission of the collections to the State Treasurer and substituted a provision that they should be transmitted as soon as the automobile registration commissioner compiled his records of registration and fees collected.

The Page bank failed on May 7, 1927, shortly after the murder of Clifford Hicks, St. Louis attorney, who was a director of the bank.

His murder never was solved by the police.

Becker had made deposits of license fees totaling $45,579 in the Page bank, from March 25, to April 23, 1927, after entering into a contract with the bank officers to make a deposit of $30,000 or more. He took a personal bond of the directors as a guaranty.

The account was in the name of "Charles U. Becker, Secretary of State."

Commissioner Davis, who wrote the opinion, pointed out that the law in effect at the time concerning the fees, required prompt transmission to the Treasurer after collection.

Rules It Is Preferred Claim.

"The Secretary of State was a mere collector of fees, nothing more," Commissioner Davis said. "The authority given him did not extend to a deposit and it was his duty to promptly transmit the fees to the State Treasurer, to whom they were payable, and under whose control and custody the statute placed them."

"Notwithstanding an honorable intent on the part of the Secretary of State as to be deposits, such deposits were made against the admonition of the law and were illegal, and as the bank knew the source of the deposits, it became a trustee as to the fees deposited."

Having determined the bank was a trustee, relative to these fees, and having determined that Becker illegally deposited the fees instead of promptly transmitting them to the Treasurer, as required by law, application of the rule of law made the full amount of the State deposit a preferred claim against assets of the Page Bank, the Commissioner ruled.

A similar claim is pending for payment in full of the deposit of approximately $25,000 in license fees made by the Secretary of State in the now defunct Citizens Security Bank of Englewood.

Recluse's $40,000 Hoard In Bare Riverfront Room

Public Administrator Also Finds Deeds to Property Worth $35,000 When He Examines Effects of F. J. Wuerz.

A begrimed walnut dresser in the corner of a dirty, unkempt, second-floor room at 213½ Market street yesterday gave up a story of a Midas of the river front.

There Public Administrator Schuler found a box containing $40,000 in stocks and bonds, and deeds to four pieces of property valued at $35,000, the life savings of a 72-year-old bachelor, Frank J. Wuerz, once a white-collared hotel clerk, who died Tuesday at City Hospital of infirmities, a shabby recluse.

The one-armed crossing watchman who lives in a $5-a-month room upstairs in the dingy three-story building, was still shaking his head in wonderment amounting to disbelief last night, when he told the street cleaner, who pays $7 a month for the choice front room, about their neighbor.

"How he used to beef about paying $4.50 for his room, him with four houses he could have lived in. Huh!"

Paving Blocks for Fuel.

A wooden bed, the towering dresser, an iron cookstove, a round table, three straight wooden chairs, two old trunks containing nondescript clothing, papers and rubbish, and several boxes of books filled the uncarpeted tenement. Two windows appeared never to have been washed in the 12 years he had lived there, and light was furnished by a glaring electric bulb, hanging in the center of the room. A fuel pile of wooden paving blocks filled one corner of the room.

Archaeologists date their findings by the geological formations in which they are found, and it is similarly possible to determine those volumes which were the eccentric hermit's favorites in his last days. More than a dozen Bibles, both in English and in German, which he spoke equally well, had been freed from the heavy dust which covered other books, by recent handling.

Numerous passages on the dog's eared pages were marked with pencil. Among them was the twenty-seventh verse of the Thirty-fifth Psalm: "Let the Lord be magnified, which hath pleasure in the prosperity of his servant."

Magazines From Dump Heaps.

Histories of the United States and of Germany also appeared to be favorites, laying on the rickety table with copies of travel magazines, apparently salvaged from dump heaps.

Memoranda, in which were reported daily expenditures, when there were any, filled a small box. In addition to this record they contained such entries as "Saved since 1919, $80," meaningless to anyone except the penurious owner.

Unlike Midas, Wuerz had no "golden touch." His wealth was the result of self-denial, of penny-pinching, of careful investment and re-investment. The alchemic process was one of deprivation and self-imposed destitution.

Avoided Conversation.

Even those who remember him 15 years ago when he quit after a quarter-century as night clerk at the Laclede Hotel, cannot remember that he spent a cent unnecessarily. His pay was "$50 a month, cot and cakes," a son of a former manager of the Laclede said today. "He cut hisg own hair, washed his own sox and read yesterday's discarded newspapers today. He associated with no one and could not be drawn into a conversation."

An occasional chance meeting on the street was the on time at which any of his relatives ever saw him. Joseph R. Wuerz, a clerk for the Aluminum Ore Co. of East St. Louis, who lives in Belleville, took charge of his brother's effects yesterday.

Frank always had been fond of reading his Bible, the brother related. He went to church infrequently, however. As a young man he played the violin for his own amusement, and even then kept much to himself. He neither smoked nor drank.

Searched for Flotsam.

His gray-haired neighbors saw little of him and seldom could elicit a reply to their pleasantries. Occasionally he would venture in to see a neighbor, speak a few words, and leave as abruptly as he came. He might be found sitting on the levee on moonlight nights, where, by day, he would be seen searching for flotsam.

Joseph Wuerz will receive half the estate and six nieces and nephews, heirs of a sister, Mrs. Caroline Schallert, will divide the remainder.

"Frank might have lived with me, but he preferred to be by himself," the brother said. "Yes, $75,000 is a lot of money, but, when you think about it, Frank never would have been really rich —not even if he had a billion."

TRIAL IN CHICAGO GANG MURDERS SET FOR MARCH 16

Defense Answers Ready but State Asks for Delay to Prepare Case.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 2.—Jack McGurn and Rocco Fanelli, members of the gang headed by "Scarface Al" Capone, charged by police with the killing of seven members of the George (Bugs) Moran gang on Feb. 14, were ordered held without bail when arraigned in Municipal Court today on seven charges of murder. On motion of the State their cases were continued to March 16. Mrs. Louise ("Lulu Lou") Rolfe, found with McGurn when he was arrested in a hotel, was charged with disorderly conduct. Her bond was fixed at $3400.

The prisoners were brought into the court by so many policemen and detectives that spectators were crowded out. The defendants appeared much more calm than the police, who said they feared one of the three might try to escape. The defense attorneys announced they were ready for trial, adding that the State had no evidence against the men. Assistant State's attorneys asked for delay to prepare their case.

"The Board of Aldermen being intensely interested in the welfare of its citizens," the resolution states, "is desirous of preventing a repetition of accidents of this kind in the future."

The special committee would be directed to study the situation and make "whatever recommendations it may deem expedient, with the object in view of curtailing or reducing to a minimum, accidents at railroad grade crossings."

EDWIN MASSA, 80, JEWELER, KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Neck Broken When Pinned Beneath Upset Car Driven by Stepdaughter at Jacksonville, Fla.

Edwin Massa, 80 years old, vice president of the Bauman-Massa Jewelry Co., 704 Olive street, was killed yesterday afternoon near Jacksonville, Fla., when an automobile in which he was riding upset. His neck was broken.

Mr. and Mrs. Massa were riding in a car driven by Mrs. Massa's daughter, Mrs. W. H. Comford of Jacksonville, and were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. James G. Cantwell, also of Jacksonville. In avoiding a collision with another car, Mrs. Comford turned out and the machine turned over. Massa was pinned beneath it. The others escaped with minor injuries.

Mr. Massa, who resided at 5409 Maple avenue, went to Florida two weeks ago with his wife to recuperate after an attack of pneumonia. He was a native of Ohio and at the age of 17 was a clerk in a Columbus jewelry store. Several years later he went to Alton, Ill., where he was employed by Cary-Hawley & Co. He returned to Columbus, then came to St. Louis in 1877, starting the E. Massa Co., wholesale jewelers. In 1889 Mr. Massa and Samuel Bauman organized the Bauman-Massa company.

Mr. Massa retired from active business several years ago. Funeral arrangements have not been announced.

THREE BOYS STRIP COAT FROM ANOTHER YOUTH

Police Later Recover Sheepskin Garment and Hold Accused Lads.

Walter McQuillan, 13 years old, 3006 Henrietta street, had a sheepskin coat which was the envy of the other boys in his neighborhood. He wore it to a picture show last night and, on the way home about 10 o'clock, was pounced upon by three boys who peeled off his coat.

"Buddy, I need this coat worse than you do," said one of them as they ran away.

Walter told his troubles to a policeman and at 1:30 a. m. a 14-year-old boy of the neighborhood was arrested. He led the way to a shed where the coat was hidden On his story then, two other boys of about the same age were arrested. The three were sent to the House of Dntntion to be held for the Juvenile Court.

ALDERMEN REFUSE TO RAISE FIREMEN'S PAY $25 A MONTH

Action Expected; Proposal to Increase Wages $270,000 a Year to Go On Ballot.

The Board of Aldermen yesterday formally declined to pass a $25-a-month wage increase for 900 city firemen, a total increase of $270,000 a year. The Board of Estimate previously had refused to approve an increase.

Refusal by the Board of Aldermen had been expected, and was a formality preparatory to placing the proposed wage upon the ballot to be voted on at the city election April 2, under the initiative provisions of the city charter.

Alderman Riefling introduced a bill which would make Hawthorne and Longfellow boulevards oneway streets.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The Theater Society.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE recently organized theater society of St. Louis has been favorably commented on. The project is of great interest to the men and women of this city who attend the theater—and who does not when first-class productions are presented?

The depressed theatrical conditions of the country have rendered cities outside the immediate radius of New York practically without professional drama. One knows that new plays are written and presented, but they seldom venture on the road.

That the New York Theater Guild road companies have just finished playing for several weeks here to large houses, augurs well for the new organization patterned on the same idea, which will give to St. Louis 25 weeks of excellent stock, with an occasional visiting star.

This would guarantee a permanent audience, and a wide variety to the range of plays that would mean a new impulse in things dramatic. St. Louis, with its surrounding suburbs, draws from over a million people, and it is high time that this audience is welded into a great theatrical unit, and not lost through lack of a suitable dramatic medium.

The life memberships now being sold, are a very definite step in the building of the society. Each person purchasing a membership, shows in so doing interest in it as a public and civic enterprise, and thus makes a definite contribution; and second, acquires a reduction on tickets purchased for every performance, and choice seats before the general sale. These two advantages are enough in themselves if viewed from a gainful angle, but the real test of the enterprise is the interest exhibited by public spirited men and women, who thus underwrite their belief because of a genuine desire to see a local and civic undertaking of large import succeed.

A Wedding Present for Lindbergh.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

ASK the people of St. Louis, every man, woman and school child, to give one cent or more, and give Col. Lindbergh a suitable wedding present, that his offspring can say, "See what my father's home town gave him as a present."

Dislikes McNamee.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I HAD the pleasure of hearing the report of the Sharkey-Stribling bout, round by round, through the splendid service of the KSD, and I take this means of expressing my sincere appreciation for that privilege. But—

There is one thing that spoiled the evening and that was the broadcasting of Graham McNamee. I was irritated all through the time the fight was in progress by his insinuating sallies.

How much longer must radio fans be punished by such as he? This is only a repetition of the world series when a storm of protest arose over this man when he favored individual players on the Yankee team, remember?

Mr. Editor, I am not a grouch, but I do so detest this way of broadcasting I cannot refrain from telling you about it.

Party Responsibility.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IF what Mr. Kiel says against Mayor Miller is true then the entire Republican administration must be held equally responsible, for the Republicans made no effort to make corrections. Mr. Kiel should have considered it his public duty to inform the people of St. Louis of all these alleged Miller evils while they were occurring and save our city from many losses that he attributes to the Miller administration, and not keep us waiting until the eleventh hour of the campaign before he flares up.

Opposes Wage Boost for Firemen.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I AM the wife of a working man who must work every day with wages of $5.50 per day. Out of that money I am trying to raise and educate two small children and I am also paying on the purchase of our little home.

Why should the city firemen receive $25 more each month? Their job is easy when compared with the average working man's labor. Increase in firemen's pay will mean an increase in taxes and the little home-owner will have to pay more taxes.

MRS. FRANK WILSON.

Likes Fox Policy.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I HAVE read with interest "Admirer's" letter regarding the new Fox Theater.

I, too, am one of the many who hopes that the Fox management will not discontinue its present policy of splendid shows, simply because they "go over the heads" of a few jazz-crazed individuals, and I have adopted the slogan, "Visit the Fox every week."

The shows thus far have certainly merited the crowds and I believe that many St. Louisans, along with myself, wish more power to the Fox.

OUR CONGRESSIONAL DICTATOR.

The so-called drastic dry law, providing penalties of five years' imprisonment and $10,000 fine for violation of the Volstead act, has been signed by the President.

The bill is a desperate effort to put into the hands of the Government a legal weapon which will frighten the public into obedience to the law. It can hardly be called a measure to assure the enforcement of the law, because it will probably make the Volstead act even more unenforcable than it is now. Juries as a rule, do not enforce excessrvely drastic laws. They will not inflict cruel and unusual punishments for minor offenses. So that it is likely to become more of a bugaboo than an effective act.

The tyranny and absurdity of the prohibition acts have so weakened the Government's power to enforce law and curb lawlessness that the prohibitionists are desperate and are driven to futile gestures of menace to law-breakers, which in the end result in greater disrespect for law and more lawlessness. This is the course of all assaults upon justice and liberty by law. The laws eventually are utterly disregarded and thrown into the scrap heap.

The adoption of this law, however, is a fresh revelation of the power of the Anti-Saloon League over Congress. We do not believe a law of this kind would ever be approved by the calm judgment of a majority of either House. But Scott McBride sat in the gallery and watched the vote. Members of Congress under his eyes were sheep following a shepherd. They knew their political master's voice and obeyed it. One Representative called him the "super-president." He is more than that. He is dictator so far as any act relating to prohibition is concerned.

JUST A COMMON SENSE JOB.

Mr. Kiel pledges himself, if elected Mayor, "to act promptly in appointing an airport commission to employ an expert engineer for the work." But why is it necessary to appoint a commission to employ such a man? We already have an advisory committee made up of men qualified by experience and public interest to counsel with the Mayor in the selection of a competent aeronautical engineer.

It is reassuring, of course, to learn that a candidate for the mayoralty does appreciate the necessity of a specially trained man for this important job, and also appreciates the necessity for prompt action. But the appointment of another commission, with its inevitable delay, seems to us waste motion and further loss of time.

One thing is sure: St. Louis is sinning away priceless days of grace in this matter of building an airport. The harsh truth is that the present administration has rejected the advice of the Advisory Committee, has stubbornly refused to profit from the experience of other cities, and, by its inaction and obstinacy, is smothering the city's prospects of becoming the country's aviation center.

We have no airport problem in St. Louis—merely a business proposition that can be solved quickly by the application of administrative common sense and energy. Instead of such commen sense and energy we have self-opinionated official inaction.

It is a wretched exhibition which the administration is giving in an enterprise in which St. Louis justifiably dreamed of taking the lead.

ST. LOUIS' DA VINCI.

While they are still rowing about that Kansas City picture—whether it is an original or a copy—we make bold to say that St. Louis has a genuine Da Vinci. Indeed, that little greenhouse garden in Forest Park is a lovelier picture than the Florentine, or anyone else, ever put on canvas. It is a thing of sheer beauty. The incomparable centerpiece still holds one speechless—a great emerald mounted in arabesques of pink, purple, rose-red and starry glints of white. The banks of flaming color have the dazzling opulence of crown jewels. This year, it seems to us, the azaleas strike the most exquisite note in this floral melody. And the old gardner—what a perfect host he is!—is the proudest man in this town and, we rather think, the richest. There is a place to visit now, this garden of blooming glory.

LAWNS AND TREES.

Mrs. George Draper of New York, speaking before a St. Louis audience, told how New York City is endeavoring to bring a bit of grass and garden to the metropolis of brick and steel. The speaker told of small gardens on the tops of apartment buildings, tiny greenhouses adjoining apartment living rooms, how courtyards of no great size are being utilized for flower plots.

It is commendable work, but it points a moral for every fast growing city. St. Louis has been fortunate in the past with its homes surrounded on all sides by green lawns. But with the advent of great apartment buildings much of that green has disappeared. There still remain, in many localities, the front lawns. But the grass plots in the rear are giving way to concrete and garages, and the side lawns have surrendered to make room for the buildings themselves. It is now that St. Louis must look to husbanding its green spaces and its gardens, or in the years to come we, too, will be turning to small gardens on tops of apartment houses and tiny greenhouses adjoining apartment living rooms. The disappearance of lawns and trees around houses would take away one of the most attractive features of St. Louis.

"BACKWARD, TURN BACKWARD!"

It is disappointing at a time when St. Louis is being pictured throughout the nation as a "forward looking city" to hear the remarks of Judge Henry S. Priest, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Mayor, when he discusses subways.

"Now it is proposed to build a subway," Judge Priest told the members of the Town Club. "These bold fancies take possession of the people and thoughtlessly they are led astray by someone who wants to do public work. * * * It is idle at this time to talk about a subway. . ."

Thousands of service car drivers are making a substantial living hauling passengers for 25 cents each, over approximately the same routes that can be traveled on a street car for eight cents or a bus for 10. Today the service car is St. Louis' rapid transit system.

A strenuous effort is being extended at the present time, to legislate the service cars from the streets, as a menace both to comfort and safety. But Judge Priest maintains that it is idle to talk about a subway because the population and circumstances do not justify it, and he believes we would burden ourselves and future generations by building one.

The same philosophy of government kept gas light standards on the streets of St. Louis long after they were relegated to other cities' dumps. Let St. Louis provide for her future not with a "burden," but with modern facilities whereby they will spend less than one-twelfth of their lifetimes going to and from their daily jobs and will not be crushed in packed vehicles.

"WHAT IS STALIN?"

Someone has defined wisdom as "common sense in an uncommon degree." That seems to be Trotzky's estimate of Stalin who, he concedes, possesses "practical sense, moderation and perseverance in pursuit of his objectives." There is nothing spectacular in those qualities, but any man so equipped is pretty sure to finish a considerable distance ahead of where he started. It is a treacherous eminence that Stalin occupies, from which he may tumble any minute, but he is no accident.

READY FOR AN ANTARCTIC WINTER.

An early winter is beginning to close down on the Antarctic. Commander Byrd's men have seen their base ship, City of New York, push through the new ice in the Bay of Whales, bound back to New Zealand. The radio has carried to the supply ship an order to put back into port rather than risk becoming icebound in the Ross Sea with its second cargo. Now the expedition is definitely isolated on the mighty ice barrier on the edge of the southern continent, and the men are preparing for their winter's stay at Little America, the village they built before the ships turned back.

The party will have a winter far different from any spent by previous explorers in the polar snows. Not all the comforts of home have accompanied the men to Antarctica, but they will benefit from all that modern science and careful provisioning can do to minimize the strain of a cold, dark season on the ice. Blizzards may sweep fiercely across the barren plateau, but the radio will cheer the party with news and music from home, and there will be gay evenings in the big mess hall of the village. There is a well-chosen library, and a course of lectures and study is planned to while away the long days in the marooned camp.

Gen. A. W. Greely, dean of Arctic explorers, one of seven who survived the memorable starvation camp of 1883, doubtless looks with more than the layman's amazement on Commander Byrd's preparations for the winter. Instead of the carefully doled pemmican, evaporated potatoes and frozen beef of the Greely expedition, these modern explorers will have fresh bread and cake, chicken and turkey on occasion, and real cream in their coffee. The stories of Greely and other explorers of the past remained a secret until they returned from their frozen camps with tales of suffering and accomplishment. The marvel of the wireless will enable Commander Byrd to report the weather news and his men's daily doings to his many well-wishers at home. A hot summer here should be made more bearable by news of an Independence Day celebration at 60 below in Little America.

TOLERANCE IN NORTH CAROLINA.

Judge A. M. Stack, presiding in a North Carolina Superior Court, passed sentence on a prize fighter convicted of killing another man in a quarrel over a dog.

The boxer was accused of one crime, but in the eyes of the Judge he had committed two more severe infractions of the law. Witness the judicial language: ". . . Men get in the ring and pummel each other. That destroys a man's idea of things. I'd like to see Jack Dempsey in jail. He has done more to corrupt the boys and men of the country than anyone I know of. . . . There was no necessity to kill this man over an old dog. I think it ought to be a crime for a man to keep a dog."

The Judge rumbled on, fulminating against the movies because some small boys in his home town, "dressed as cowboys and robbed a store."

Shades of Senator Vest! A crime to keep a dog! In a country rife with corrupt officialdom, saddled with iniquitous prohibition law, replete with murderers and thieves, Judge Stack can find no greater corrupting influence than Jack Dempsey, who, as a boxer, was forced to lead the cleanest possible sort of life, for no man ever successfully dissipated and at the same time, held a world's boxing championship.

Dogs . . . Boxers . . . The movies . . . We wonder what Judge Stack does approve of—how far back his mind works.

War and Peace

A collection of opinions of the present world attitude toward war and peace, ranging from Mr. Hearst's jingoistic exhortation to build airplanes, submarines and fast cruisers and Mussolini's ominous warning against fostering illusions to the gentler views of Paul Painleve and Gustav Stresemann.

From the LIVING AGE.

IT is Uncle Sam's turn now. Airplanes submarines, fast cruisers will answer any question from any other nation, and this country should have the answer ready.—The "New York American," Hearst Daily.

* * *

WE have an obligation to do something toward freeing the world of war. We must interest all of the people, make them think, make them work out the solution with us. War is a senseless slaughter of youth that takes as its victims the best in the land.

We are not so much concerned with armament as with the men behind the armament. We must educate them. The limitation of armament is helpful and should be encouraged. It is human nature, however, that makes the trouble. Now that war has become a matter of industries, we are the best prepared nation in the world. This brings us a frightful responsibility to do straight thinking on the subject. If we do not, who will?—Major-General John F. O'Ryan.

* * *

WHILE there seems to be no danger of war in the immediate future, the modern young man remains inarticulate about the ethics of warfare. But the lure of another war still remains powerfully attractive in the background. It is probable that if it came he could not resist it; his education has deprived him of the power to think rationally about warfare.—"Nation and Athenaeum" (London.)

* * *

THE proposals to prohibit the use of particular weapons of war, such as gas and other chemicals, are useless, and would not be worth a snap of the fingers once hostilities had begun...... When a nation finds itself at war it will stop at nothing. There is tremendous humbug in suggesting that one nation can be more savage or ruthless than another...... If you are going to war you use every weapon in your power to attain your ends. The mass of people are not yet convinced of the necessity of disarmament. The only means of approach to the question is to bring about a change of spirit.—Charles George Ammon, M. B.

* * *

WE rejoice in the many indications that the nations of the world are thinking less about the past and more about the future and desire to find better ways of intercourse than those which have so long prevailed.—Gustav Stresemann, Foreign Minister of Germany.

* * *

SO you want me to speak about the kind of war we may expect in future? My answer is brief; there shall be no future war of any kind! My program is future peace and not future war...... The Minister of War, because of his official position, realizes most keenly the terrible significance of war, and it is his business to work against, not for, war. I am honestly convinced that, at least in civilized lands, there will be no more war. I do not conceal from myself the manifold difficulties which still threaten a lasting peace—Paul Painleve, French Minister of War.

FRANCE alone among the Great Powers has a naval budget inferior to her pre-war budgets...... It is 26 per cent below the budget of 1914. The budget for the American Navy has increased about 165 per cent over that of the pre-war period. The Japanese naval budget has increased 120 per cent. The Italian naval budget shows an increase of about 15 per cent over that of 1914—George Leygues, French Minister of Marine.

* * *

I SOLEMNLY protest against making our festive events and ceremonies—and especially the inauguration of our President—the occasion for glorifying war and the taking of human life. If we want the world to believe us half civilized, let the instruments of killing, of wholesale murder and slaughter, be banished forever from our public parades.—United States Representative O. J. Kvale (Farmer-Labor).

* * *

THE ordinary man in the street thinks that the prevention of war is an ideal, and he is shy of ideals.—Major-General Sir George McKenzie, former President Allied Sub-Commission of Organization in Turkey.

* * *

IT is a unique paradox when each nation builds up its future potentialities solely on a foundation of peace and yet constantly allows huge sums to be swallowed up by armaments for war. I notice also that the negotiations of Governments do not correspond accurately to the sentiments of the people, and that in the matter of peace the people are advanced, while the governments appear to be reactionary. —Paul Lobe, President of the German Reichstag.

* * *

IF one looks about in Europe and the world in general, one is not able to find today a state of mind productive of security or confidence. The peoples shroud themselves in mutual distrust. Many of them are armed to the teeth. Expenditures for defense are just as great now in Europe and America as they were before the War, when militarism had reached its highest point. Only four European states have disarmed. That cannot establish confidence. Often there is talk, in an irresponsible manner, of a "next war," as if it were an inevitable natural catastrophe. The danger of such a war depends entirely on the will of the people themselves.—Fridtjof Nansen.

* * *

THE answer to the question, "Peace or war!" rests to a great extent on whether certain ideas will forge triumphantly ahead or retreat, on whether public opinion inclines decisively in the direction of peace. Without a disposition toward peace there can be no peace, or at best only a forced peace...... In general, the popular movement today is toward peace and understanding. But, although peace is unquestionably possible, it is not yet secure, and the dangers which threaten it proceed less from an actual, positive will to war (which hardly exists now in serious form) than from various misunderstandings that destroy good will."—Norman Angell, Brit author, Editor of Foreign Affairs (Lond

Of Making Many Books
JOHN G. NEIHARDT

Without the Halo

ANDREW JACKSON THE GENTLE SAVAGE. By David Karsner. (Brentano's.)

CALLING Andrew Jackson a gentle savage is an obeisance, perhaps prompted by consideration for the considerable part of the population that has canonized him as patron-in-chief of a political party, but an obeisance that does not extend very much beyond the title page in David Karsner's new biography which comes to take its place among the many, adulatory and otherwise, that have been written.

Not that Mr. Karsner seeks to make out a case of savagery where it doesn't exist or even emphasizes the savagery more than the facts justify. He simply presents the picturesque subject of his biography as he conceives Andrew Jackson, without his halo, to have been—pioneer, pathfinder, illiterate, brawler, dueller, race track tout, patron of cock fighting, tavern frequenter, Indian fighter, army general, judge, senator, President, to mention a few of his characteristics and achievements. Jackson the hater, whose hatred nothing but the blood of the hated could appease. Jackson who, in his rage, bit off the end of his pipe because, being President, he couldn't fight Henry Clay for condemning his abuse of authority. Jackson whose two greatest regrets, in leaving the White House, were that he had not had an opportunity to shoot Clay or to hang Calhoun. Jackson who was willing to go to Heaven to avoid the chance of meeting the roaming spirits of Clay, Calhoun, Webster, Adams and a great many others of his foes who, he did not indulge a doubt, would fry in hell forever. Jackson the savage but not the gentle savage.

There is, indeed, the suggestion of gentle satiety when the grim and stricken man has come to his last days. He sits in his arm chair when he is too ill to go downstairs. On the mantelpiece, where he can see them, repose his two pistols, relics of brighter and bloodier days. A guest picks up one of them and examines it. "That," says Andrew Jackson casually, "is the pistol with which I killed Mr. Dickinson." He resumes the reading of his newspaper.

Mr. Dickinson, it will be recalled, was killed in a duel, quite according to the code, but there were circumstances of deliberation on the part of Jackson that gave it somewhat the complexion of a murder.

There is a paragraph well over toward the middle of the book which reveals what the author meant by calling Jackson the gentle savage: "General Jackson is a kind, courteous and tender man to those who do his bidding, knuckle under, and believe wholly and sincerely that he is unfailingly right. To those who believe thus and manifest their belief, he is all gentleness."

One who seeks an excuse for the General's savagery has it here. It was the stiff-necked who would not do his bidding or knuckle under to him and the skeptics who could not believe that he was unfailingly right that made a savage of him.

In the home circle at the Hermitage he may indeed have been gentle, as the author assumes. There the conditions may be presumed to have been perfect for gentle qualities to thrive. For there it may not be doubted were those who were swift to do his bidding, knuckle under and believe wholly and sincerely that he was unfailingly right.

Mr. Karsner's biography, notwithstanding a slovenly confusion of tense, past, present and future, is thoroughly edifying, even if it does knock off the gentle savage's halo. But then it never did fit him very well.

STRAUSS' DON QUIXOTE PLAYED BY SYMPHONY

Heard for First Time in St. Louis — Conductor Arbos Says Farewell Tomorrow.

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN.

WITH the publication of a brilliant and eloquent tone poem called "Don Quixote," after the Spanish satirical romance written by Don Miguel Cervantes, the composer thereof passed into a Straussdammerung which has endured until this good hour. Since he is still in our midst Herr Richard has the chronological standing of a modernist. In all other respects he is as much a part of the German classic tradition as Brahms or Bruckner.

The activities of the contemporary Richard Strauss have resulted in such reflex spasms as "Intermezzo" and "Die Aegyptische Helena." But as nobody seems to confuse this anachronistic busybody with the composer of "Till Eulenspiegel," "Don Juan" and "Don Quixote" the latter may still be considered deserving of the bay wreaths and laurel sprigs that he drew when he was young and daring.

He will not get them, of course —not, at least, from the jeunesse doree who undertake to personify the modern spirit. Strauss is fearfully old hat with the Schoenbergs, the Milhauds, the Pizzetis. They are embarrassed by his forthright romanticism and would never attempt anything of the sort themselves without carefully placing their tongues in their cheeks. Yet the very fervor of the two or three Strauss compositions that once proclaimed their composer a genius will probably operate to keep them fresh when audiences have ceased to wonder at their craftsmanship. That state of affairs is beginning to be true already. Its technical ingenuity, formidable though it is, would not make "Don Quixote" anything more than an orchestral stunt if it were not also a confession of romantic faith.

The sounds produced by the instruments suggest creaking windmills, bleating sheep and rocking boats in the same literal way that a side of beef painted on a canvas by an old Dutch master stimulates memories of the corner butcher shop. But this painting escapes being an anatomical chart because it has been somehow endowed with the suggestive quality of great art and in the same way the naturalistic sounds in the score of "Don Quixote" are so projected as to suggest the world of the Knight's imagining as well as the literal face of nature.

But even though this "Don Quixote" is filled with wild ardors of poetic longings—even though it always throbs with an unquenchable emotional force—it suffers, I think, from being too closely tied to a program. The necessity of conforming to a literary narrative has introduced alien rhythms into the musical form, checked the thematic development and militated against the creation of broad, sweeping lines. Program music is bound to be a bad idea because it tries to make an implicit art explicit.

All of which brings me to a belated consideration of yesterday's performance at the Odeon. It was the principal feature of a concert that marked the last appearance of Conductor Arbos before a Friday afternoon audience and it was also the first performance of "Don Quixote" ever given in St. Louis. And it was a sensitive, resilient, well-balanced and moving performance measured by any standard.

As is usually the case, Arbos won his ascendancy over the audience by means of a treatment scrupulously reflective of the score's inward significance. There was no unnecessary brilliance, no exaggerated climaxes and no sentimental lingering over juicy tidbits.

As a result of this gratifying artistic honesty, the romantic ardors of Strauss, when they did come, were as real as the first kiss of love. Seldom has the local band played with such eloquence as in that magnificent apostrophe to the ideal woman that comes at the end of the third variation. And never has the orchestra shown the suppleness and cohesion that were evident in the many bravura passages that occur in this score.

The solo performances by the Messrs. Steindel and Tushinsky on the cello and viola, respectively, satisfied the high standards of the text. Steindel's tone was not always up to its normal richness, but his artistic grasp of the music was beyond reproach.

As a guide to the audience, placards which told what each variation was about, were placed on an easel at the left of the stage. The audience was obviously following the music closely and at the conclusion of the piece tendered Arbos and his associates an unmistakable ovation.

The second half of the program was given over to numbers by Granados, Halffter, Albenitz and Wagner. The Albeniz-Arbos "Triana," which was repeated on this program by request, brought the second storm of the afternoon and was repeated again.

The concert began with a nicely balanced performance of Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro" overture. The program will be repeated tonight and Arbos will play his farewell concert Sunday afternoon.

EX-JUDGE PRIEST DEVELOPS ATTACK ON CITY OLIGARCHY

Democratic Candidate Assails Mayor's Power to Appoint "Without Check or Hindrance."

Delivering what was termed his keynote speech in the campaign for the Democratic nomination for Mayor, over radio station KMOX last night, former Federal Judge Henry S. Priest elaborated on his previous attack on the city charter, which he depicts as the instrument of a municipal oligarchy.

He called attention to the fact that the Charter, effective since 1914, provides for election only of the Mayor, Comptroller and President of the Board of Aldermen, besides the Aldermen themselves, leaving the Mayor to "appoint without check or hindrance" the Assessor, Supply Commissioner, Register, City Counselor, Marshal, Police Judges and Clerk, and the five members of the Board of Public Service. Three of the members of the latter board must be engineers and Priest pointed out that the Mayor is the sole judge of their porfessional ability, making the appointments without public competition and without requirement for a bipartisan personnel. Priest continued:

"In Article I, section 2, the charter provides that 'whether powers, objects or purposes are expressed conjunctively or disjunctively, they shall be construed so as to permit the city to exercise freely any one or more such powers as to any one or more such objects for any one or more such purposes.' It is hard to imagine from such remarkable law language as this what an expert might do in reading power to do anything he pleased conjunctively into as many sections as he pleased while reading it both disjunctively and conjunctively into the whole purpose of the charter to prevent effective objection to it. This is to be considered in the light of the preceding section of the article.

How Checks May Be Evaded.

"Under it, the Mayor and other managers whom the Charter purposes to release from check can do 'all things whatsoever expedient' in their organic capacity if they judge it expedient for 'promoting the comfort..... of the city or its inhabitants.' If the expediency does not appear for comfort, then they have the same power to do all things whatsoever they decide to be expedient for 'morals' and 'welfare.' Then as if, conjunctively or disjunctively, this were not enough for absolute dictatorship in management, the word 'government' follows. There is thus an express provision for doing 'all things whatsoever' the government may find expedient in governing — a more remarkable provision than any tyrant ever ventured to insert in any document defining his ideas of prescription and plan for getting rid of check and balance in spite of attempts at 'constitutional government.'

"In addition to these, there are six other separate standpoints from which they may decide and determine disjunctively what they are to 'abate,' 'suppress' and prevent in acts and practices, conduct or business, and 'all other things whatsoever' if they decide them to be detrimental or 'liable to be detrimental' to comfort, morals, welfare, health, etc., including 'convenience.'

Priest repeated his argument for a two-house municipal assembly with minority party representation. He has pledged himself to seek a charter amendment to accomplish this, if elected. In this connection he said: "What we most need is a return to the old-time tried and well-established principles of the American doctrine of government of a free people, with its proper checks and balances." Under Rolla Wells, the last Democratic Mayor, and under the old charter, he declared, the city fared splendidly, and Wells "did not by neglect or promotion overwhelm the city with debt."

Also Opposes Elevated.

Turning attention to the current discussion of rapid transit, Priest transposed an argument made earlier in the week against subways to apply against elevated lines. He said:

"There is an apparent demand for an elevated railway service. Are we ripe for such an experiment? Is our city so conditioned topographically as to justify at this time the enormous cost of such an experimental investment? One line from east to west will only serve a comparatively small part of the population. What like convenience can we offer to north and south parts of the city? We must also bear in mind that a very heavily encumbered and taxed city is not attractive to business enterprises. It goes where the burdens of government are least oppressive.

In his introductory remarks, Priest recalled that he had run for the nomination for United States Senator in 1920 because Senator Reed "was being bitterly assailed for his sound, statesmanlike stand upon the important questions of that day," and had run for the nomination for Governor in 1924 "because I found no Democratic candidate who was willing courageously to stand openly against the Eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act." Continuing a characteristic attack on prohibition, Priest asked: "Shall we supinely submit to the enslavement of over 100,000,000 people at the behest of a fanatical faction of Ku Kluxers and Anti-Saloonists?"

"Not in Race for Honor."

"I am not in this race," the candidate went on, "for the honor or emoluments of the office, but because I think I may be of service to the people. It is a great city of nearly 1,000,000 splendid people, entirely capable of self-government, and needs no Czar to rule over it. Should I be elected, I shall regard the commission as one of a sacred trust for the whole people, compelling an unstinted service in discharge of the duties of the office, without partiality to or prejudice against any class or interest, intelligently weighing and justly judging all matters that may require action on my part. It will be a work, not a recreation.

"We wear an apparent prosperity; whether it is actual must depend upon what we have done and whether it has been wisely and economically done. No one is so sadly deceived as he who deceives himself. Under our present city laws the people have no adequate means of determining the wisdom or excellency of our public work."

23 OF COMMITTEE FOR M'DANIEL, 18 FOR H. S. PRIEST

Post-Dispatch Poll Shows Two Supporting Dr. Simon for Democratic Mayoralty Nomination.

Following a number of ward organization meetings last night at which indorsements of mayoralty candidates were voted, a Post-Dispatch toll today shows that 23 members of the Democratic City Committee are supporting Lawrence McDaniel and 18 are for Henry S. Priest. One more is claimed for McDaniel and three more for Priest. Two committeemen are for the third candidate, Dr. John H. Simon.

Eight members of the committee are awaiting the result of ward meetings next week before announcing their support and one committeewoman, who likely will be in the McDaniel column, has deferred a statement.

Among the 28 Committeemen, McDaniel has the support of 14, Priest of five, Dr. Simon of two, and seven are awaiting meetings. Priest is backed by 13 Committeewomen and claims three more; McDaniel has the aid of nine of the women and claims a tenth, and one Committeewoman is waiting for a meeting.

12th Ward Organization Neutral.

Although M. J. McGee and Miss Nell Dwyer, members of the committee from the Twelfth Ward, are supporting Priest, their ward organization decided not to indorse any candidate, at Carondelet Library last night. John J. Whalen, a McDaniel man, advised McGee not to seek an indorsement of Priest as the sentiment of the gathering of about 75 persons was against this. At McGee's suggestion, according to Whalen, the question was left open and Whalen was made temporary chairman for a discussion of the candidates.

As a result of the indorsement of McDaniel voted last night by the Seventh Ward precinct organization, at 1731 Chouteau avenue, Mrs. Lucy Gorman, Committeewoman, has switched from Priest, whom she had been aiding, to McDaniel. Joseph J. Mestres, chairman of the City Committee and representative of the ward, announced that the vote for McDaniel was unanimous. Mestres long has been friendly to Priest. McDaniel delivered and address at the meeting, as did James J. Milligan, a lawyer, representing Priest. Milligan related that McDaniel and Dr. Simon had supported Charles M. Hay, a dry, against a wet for the senatorial nomination last August. Mestres rebuked Milligan for injecting this and declared nothing should be done to disrupt the present Democratic harmony.

Three Make Indorsements

Precinct organizations of the Fifth and Eighth wards indorsed McDaniel last night and that of the Tenth Ward indorsed Priest. The committee members from these districts already were supporting the respective candidates.

Committeeman James Stewart of the Thirteenth Ward, announced that his organization would refrain from making an indorsement, although it voted on Thursday its sense that the choice of Priest was favorable. Mrs. Mary E. Kickham, committeewoman there, is for Priest.

John Genteman and Mrs. S. Bruer, committeemembers from the First Ward, have announced that they are for Priest. Their organization meets next week. Priest's headquarters is claiming the backing of William Clark and Mrs. Elizabeth Coyle, committee members from the Twenty-first Ward, but Mrs. Coyle said she was undecided. Clark said he was for Priest but would be guided by his organization's action next week.

SCHMOLL CHARGES MILLER'S RACE IS COSTING $160,000

Four Times Usual Fund Employed in His Mayoralty Fight, Circuit Court Clerk Declares.

Charges that the Miller organization is spending four times as much in the current mayoralty campaign as ever was previously spent in a local campaign, were made last night by Circuit Clerk John Schmoll, speaking in behalf of former Mayor Kiel before the Thirteenth Ward Republican Club at Gravois avenue and Bates street.

"It is reported that there is to be spent in this campaign in Mayor Miller's interest in excess of $160,000," Schmoll declared. "Certainly no local campaign has ever been conducted with one-fourth of the extravagance or expense. One hundred and sixty thousand dollars is a large sum to spend on a primary election. It means about $2.50 for every vote Mayor Miller can hope to receive.

"The excessive use of money is condemned by an alert electorate. Public scandals have recently arisen on this account in Illinois, in Pennsylvania and in many other places. An excessive campaign fund gives rise to suspicion. Ordinarily, many people do not contribute great sums from motives of friendship alone.

Asks Who Is Putting Up the Money

"Excessive campaign funds frequently mean that certain selfish interests are contributing on account of favors received in the past or favors expected in the future. It is for this reason that laws have been enacted limiting the amounts to be expended and requiring the publication of the names of contributors and the amounts contributed.

"The voters have a right to know who is putting up all of this Miller money. They have a right to know it now. Mayor Miller's committee and his supporters should give the public this information. They owe it to the public frankly and honestly to state just who the people are who are coming across with the thousands of dollars which are being spent in Miller's interest.

"They have the right to know who these undisclosed persons are who are so generous with their money. They have a right to know whether they are plain citizens interested only in the city's welfare or whether they are selfish and self-seeking interests who are interested in writing bonds and securing contracts or any other kinds of private prosperity at public expense. How can the public answer this question when the list of contributors and even the approximate aggregate amount contributed is kept secret?

"The public is also entitled to know for what purposes the enormous sums which have been raised are being spent.

Kiel Contributors Known.

"The Kiel committee has made public a complete statement of receipts and disbursements to date. The Miller committee has not."

Schmoll asserted that Mayor Miller had built up a political machine during his term of office, had been extravagant in the expenditure of bond issue funds and had failed to keep his campaign promises of four years ago. He declared that, although Mayor Miller ran on a law and order platform, he had neglected attendance at meetings of the Board of Police Commissioners.

"Miller complains that one of the reasons why he spent $13,000,000 more during his administration out of current revenue than his predecessor did was because the Police Department had spent $2,000,000 for which he was not responsible," Schmoll declared. "If he had kept his pledge and attended the meetings he might have prevented such an expenditure. But the truth of the matter is that the Police Board only spent for improvements $500,000 a year, which is no more than the average yearly expenditure under Kiel's administration for permanent improvements. It is just another lame excuse by which Miller attempts to justify his own extravagance."

Miller Circulars in Hebrew Distributed in Front of Synagogues.

Circulars printed in Hebrew and appealing to Jewish voters not to support former Mayor Kiel were distributed today in front of 21 Jewish synagogues of the city. According to a translation provided at Miller-for-Mayor headquarters, the circular charged that Kiel is "invading the precincts of the dead" for support in stating that he stepped aside in 1925 to permit the late Louis P. Aloe to become a candidate for Mayor.

The circular stated that Kiel declined to make a single speech for Aloe although he did come out publicly for minor candidates. A Jewish committee, headed by Meyer Blocher, chairman of the Jewish Orphans' Home, and Sol Goldman, a real estate dealer, is responsible for the document.

Ex-Service Men Fail to Agree on Political Organization.

A meeting of ex-service men at Tower Grove Hall, Juniata street and Grand boulevard, called last night for the purpose of organizing a Civic Federation of Veterans to support ex-service men for public office, was adjourned after a brief session when many of the 75 men who attended expressed opposition to anything but a nonpartisan organization.

The meeting was called by Walter Keiser, a member of the Fred Stockham Post of the American Legion, who presided. Speakers advocated the formation of a Republican ex-service men's organization at once, with the later formation of a similar Democratic club. However, the only result was adjournment to March 15 and the appointment of a committee of three Democrats and three Republicans to formulate by-laws for consideration then.

New York Day by Day
By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 2.

THE subtlest of Manhattan self exploiters, it strikes me, are the ambitious battoniers who lead jazz orchestras. No one ever knew an orchestra leader, outside of symphony conductors, in the old days. Today they are nation-wide celebrities.

Not one is exactly a great musician, but they do not permit a forgetful public to forget them. The most successful have personality with a big plus and are so highly commercialized they operate a number of bands, maintaining elaborate offices with well paid promoters.

There is, for instance, nothing of the long haired, wistful-eyed and soulful manner about Paul Whiteman. He is more the rather corpulent good fellow, but when he mounts the rostrum there is something incredibly eloquent about his broad back and stamping foot. Paul is an actor.

Ben Bernie, flourishing his fiddle like a fan, is not so much the symphonic marvel as the suave and polished wise cracker. He has an engaging way of taking his audience into his confidence and holding himself up to ridicule. Then he confounds them with some euphonic heaviness.

Vincent Lopez is a model of tailored elegance with tacquered black hair, long eye lashes and a boyishly shy manner. He conducts quietly, with only a jiggly movement of his right arm. He has a trick of apparently losing himself in a dreamy manner. And do the ladies love it? His mash mail is the answer, my dears!

Art Hickman conducts from his battery of drums—sitting down—and looks out over dancers to bestow a friendly smile on an acquaintance. He is the dean of the guild. Eddie Peabody interpolates baton-wielding by twanging a banjo. Paul Ash features a mop of wild red hair.

There are a dozen others with pronounced subtleties that score. With their various activities, including recording, they are paid astounding sums, far more than our President. And despite talk jazz is declining, they are now, as the song has it, on the crest of the wave.

A LITTLE coffee pot place on Seventh avenue heralds this indigestible pleasantry: "Heaviest sinkers in town—10 cents a sink."

AND in a hair-dressing parlor those who desire to see the head man are greeted with a sign: "Consultation by appointment only."

THERE is a figure in the black and tan haunts of Harlem known as Choo-Choo with orange frizzed hair and a light sepia complexion. Even to regulars she is a mystery. She speaks with a Parisian accent, is the constant companion of an extremely black sheik who wears a checkered suit and red tie. They visit the Black Belt in a limousine and have nothing to do with hoi polloi. And if she is featured in one of those colored revues next week, it makes a sucker of me again, as usual.

BROADWAY, too, has seasonal figures who come, create an air of mystery among night owls, and disappear like a magician's evanishment. A few weeks ago there was a gentleman who resembled an evil depraved Marquis from pages of an Oppenheim, with spade-shaped beard and red ribbon across his shirt front. He looked ripe for one of those international intrigues that send Scotland Yard off the deep end. He escorted an aged and slightly limping dowager, known as "The Comtesse," bedecked with diamonds and supported by a shepherd's crook like Lillian Russell used to carry in the Weberfield extravaganzas. After a few nights of wild spending, including $100 bill tips, they vanished.

A NEW YORK authoress tells in an interview how she lost all admiration for her husband because he showed up so badly in company. He had in public none of the charming qualities of polite attentiveness she saw in other men toward their wives. The lady may some day learn all married couples are pretty much alike when you shut the door on them.

MOST of the public chair-fixing husbands I know have a spell in private when their wives buy a new hat.

RECITAL ON GUITAR BY ANDRES SEGOVIA

Spanish Virtuoso Plays in Howard Hall at the Principia.

THE triumph of Spanish art continued into the evening when Andres Segovia gave a recital at Howard Hall, the Principia. This guitar playing prodigy managed to confirm all of the advance stories that described his demoniac virtuosity. He even went beyond them to some extent, for while it was possible to imagine a single instrument that sounded as if it were two or three, the great variety of effects he was able to get within a severely limited dynamic range, needed the reality to become understandable.

Segovia treated his instrument as if it were a small orchestra. That is to say, the numbers he played involved the use of intricate harmonies, counterpoint, an occasional crossing rhythm, contrasted tone quality, and rapidly articulated melodies. The technical methods employed were not always evident to the audience, though by elimination one arrived at the conclusion that his left hand was used not only for stopping but to pluck the strings as well. It was also fairly plain that he produced the tone that resembled the harpsichord more than the guitar by drumming on the strings with his finger tips.

All of this, of course, would be nothing more than superior vaudeville if it were not guided by a superior artistic temperament. The insinuating delicacy of his playing, its balance, variety and distribution of emphasis were of a kind that could only be produced by a sensitive nature.

Segovia opened with a selection by Mauro Giluliani, an Italian guitar virtuoso, who was one of the few musicans to compose directly for the instrument, and followed this with a Theme Varie by Ferdinand Sor, a Spaniard, who went into England about two hundred years ago, and according to the record revolutionized guitar playing in that right little, tight little, damp little island. The revolution could not have been far-reaching for neither England nor any other country produced a genius of the guitar until Segovia appeared over the horizon.

The remainder of Segovia's program was made up of a group by Sebastian Bach, composer for the lute, several numbers by Albeniz and three compositions by Spanish moderns which were inspired by Segovia's playing and dedicated to him.

Though insistently cheered, Segovia declined to give an encore.

LINDBERGH OFF WITH MORROWS DESPITE BANDITS

Flyer and Morrow Family Have Escort of Troops on Trip to Cuernavaca, Near Scene of Holdup.

TRAIN ROBBED AND SET AFIRE

Mexican Government Fears Outlaws Might Try to Capture Aviator and Fiancee for Ransom.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, March 2.—Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, his wife and daughters, Elizabeth and Anne, and Col. Charles A. Lindbergh departed from the Embassy in two automobiles at 10:45 a. m. today. Their destination was the Morrow country residence at Cuernavaca, where they intended to remain until Monday or Tuesday.

The Colonel, with his right arm and shoulder still bandaged because of the hurt suffered when he and Miss Anne were upset when landing a damaged airplane on Valbuena Field, drove the first car with his left hand. His fiancee was at his side.

Mr. and Mrs. Morrow and Miss Elizabeth followed immediately in the second car. It was indicated that the Ambassador probably would return to the capital on Monday.

Col. Lindbergh and Miss Morrow arrived at Cuernavaca at 12:20, covering the 40-mile drive from Mexico City in about an hour and a half. The other car arrived 20 minutes later.

The military authorities had been notified in advance that the two automobiles would travel over the Cuernavaca highway and special precautions were taken to guard against any bandit or rebel disturbance. Extra troops were stationed at strategic points along the road, ready to deal with any outlaws that might appear.

Raised Train.

A bandit raid on a freight train yesterday near Cuernavaca led to fears by Government officials that guerilla elements, ever active in this area, intended harm to Mexico's distinguished guest and his fiancee.

In the raid on the freight train the bandits looted and burned the cars. The spot where it took place was between the stations of El Parque and Alarcon, in the State of Morelos, near the highway.

But for the fact that Lindbergh, his fiancee, her mother and sister Elizabeth, chose to go to Toluca instead of adhering to an original plan to motor to Cuernavaca yesterday they would have passed close to the scene of the attack.

Bandit attacks and highway holdups have occurred in the last year at times when Ambassador Morrow himself was making the motor trip. On at least one of these occasions he missed a highway holdup by a very short time.

Maximiliano Vigueras, held responsible for those attacks, has since been captured and executed, but there have been reports that Benjamin Mendoza, who surrendered recently, was back in the field and operating in this district.

Ransom as Motive.

Motive for an attack on Lindbergh and the Morrows would be supplied by desire for ransom, which probably would be quickly paid in their cases, and to gain prestige among other Mexican outlaw elements. In view of the personal popularity of Col. Lindbergh and the Morrows no physical harm to them would be expected.

Although sources close to the Morrow family have reiterated there is to be no secret wedding between Miss Morrow and Lindbergh, a large contingent of newspaper men and photographers planned to follow the automobile carrying them as closely as the troop escort would permit.

It was said the engaged pair desired only a week-end of solitude. However, between military guards who probably will not let any of the party out of their sight outside of the Morrow home during the visit, and newspaper men who are guarding against possibility of a secret wedding, they will not lack for surveillance.

Ambassador Morrow remained at the Embassy late yesterday, cleaning up his desk there to enable him to make the trip today with Mrs. Morrow, his two daughters and his prospective son-in-law.

The newspaper La Prensa today said it had received advices locating the missing wheel that caused the plane to upset Wednesday when Lindbergh landed at the Valbuena flying field with his fiancee.

The paper received a letter from Huehuetoga, a village about 35 miles north of Mexico City, saying that the wheel had been found in a field near there. Presumably this was where Lindbergh and Miss Morrow landed for a picnic lunch. On taking off the wheel was lost. The letter said the residents intended to preserve the wheel in their city hall.

Two Illinoisans Appointed.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—President Coolidge late yesterday sent to the Senate the nominations of Myrtle Tanner Blacklidge of Chicago to be Collector of Internal Revenue for the First District of Illinois, and Leslie L. Glenn of Champaign, Ill., to be Comptroller of Customs for District No. 39, in Chicago.

STRESSES MORAL ISSUE IN FIGHT ON STEWART

Church Paper Says Rockefeller Jr. Has Put Business Ethics Above Prosperity.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 2.—The issues in the Rockefeller-Stewart fight for control of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana are described as business ethics versus business prosperity in an article in today's issue of Information Service, published by the Department of Research and Education of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

The article reviews the history of the controversy dating from the disclosures of the oil scandals. It gives the arguments of both sides equal prominence and leaves the reader to draw his own conclusions. The "sophisticated view" of big business toward this "battle of giants," the article shows, is sympathetic toward Stewart.

"The ground of Mr. Rockefeller's opposition is not legal so much as moral," the review says. "He says he has lost confidence in Col. Stewart because of his attitude toward a Government inquiry, his concealments and the false implications of his testimony.

"Another contrast between the position of Mr. Rockefeller and his group and that of Col. Stewart and the stockholders protective committee, which is appealing for support of his candidacy, is indicated by the word 'protective.' The committee points to Col. Stewart's amazing and admitted success as an executive. What, the committee asks, has Mr. Rockefeller to offer? He expresses himself as hopeful the company may continue to prosper. * * * 'Is it good business to change what is for what may be?'

"In other words, Mr. Rockefeller has no business argument to support his position; he admits Col. Stewart's outstanding ability and achievements. He has only one argument and that is moral. On the other hand, he does not see any business risk in the course he is advocating.

"There has been much discussion in the business community of the possible bearing upon this contest of economic factors in the oil industry. Such considerations have undoubtedly served to cloud the moral issue in the minds of many persons. In this contest Mr. Rockefeller has encountered opposition rather than support from the sources within the industry which in consideration of competitive interest alone, a contrary influence might have been expected."

Attributes Rockefeller Fight on Stewart to Certain Senators.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 2.—A letter sent yesterday to stockholders by the Stockholders' Protective Committee of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana said that the campaign to oust Robert W. Stewart as chairman of the board of directors contains not one direct charge. The committee was organized to aid Stewart in his fight with John D. Rockefeller Jr.

Stewart's fitness to retain his office is not a question of honesty or integrity, as his opponents claim, but of business judgment, said the letter.

"Mr. Rockefeller promised certain Senators engaged in an illegal investigation to deliver Col. Stewart," it continued. "He failed; hence the attack."

Stewart's accomplishments were reviewed. When he became chief executive in 1918 the outstanding capital stock was $30,000,000. Today it is $345,000,000. The capital and surplus then was $117,500,000, while now it is $460,000,000.

GARNER OF TEXAS NEXT HOUSE MINORITY LEADER

Democratic Caucus Selects Him to Succeed Garrett of Tennessee.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—House Democrats in caucus yesterday unanimously selected Representative John Garner of Texas, as their party leader in the next Congress.

He will succeed Representative Finis J. Garrett of Tennessee, who failed last year in a race for the Senate and who has been appointed to the Federal bench by President Coolidge.

Garner, who is now rounding out his thirteenth term in the House as against 12 for Garrett, was nominated for Speaker but as the Republicans will have a laarge majority to elect their candidate, Garner automatically will become the minority leader.

House Republicans will caucus today. Representative Nicholas Longworth of Ohio, present Speaker, has no opposition for the nomination.

Representative John McDuffie of Alabama today was appointed Democratic whip in the next Congress by Garner. Representative Box of Texas is the present whip, or assistant leader.

Muelle, 1201 North Vandeventer avenue and, declaring that a fire was raging at 3845 Finney avenue, asked Muelle to telephone an alarm. Engine Co. No. 28 responded, but found no trace of a fire. Later two other false alarms were answered. One came from Grand boulevard and Potomac street at 4:30 p. m. and one from Canterbury avenue and Tennyson square at 6:20 p. m.

GIVES KIEL CREDIT FOR GOOD CITY WATER

Edward E. Wall Says Ex-Mayor Established Present Filtration System.

Edward E. Wall, who served through Mayor Kiel's three administrations as Water Commissioner, and whom Mayor Miller promoted to Director of Public Utilities and later removed from that office made a radio speech on station KMOX last night, supporting Kiel's candidacy in the Republican mayoralty primary.

Wall appeared to be referring indirectly to some of Mayor Miller's practices, when he said of Kiel as Mayor:

"His (Kiel's) habit was to confer with his associates in municipal government and defer to their opinion on technical matters. He did not pose as an authority on law, finance and engineering. He did not study over the municipal problems connected with these subjects until he was hopelessly muddled up, and then call in his cabinet and gave them his half-baked notions as true and correct solutions of the cases in hand. Henry Kiel was always ready and willing to leave these problems to the experts in their respective specialties. But he did know men. He had an uncanny faculty of knowing just how a proposition would strike the average man. He knew how to manage men."

Wall told of serving, as Water Commissioner, on the Board of Public Improvements, under the old charter, another member being Dwight F. Davis, now Secretary of War.

"It is to the honor of Henry Kiel, and an evidence of his good judgement," Wall said, "that at no time did he attempt to interfere with the work of the Board or to control the action of its individual members. He wrote no letters ordering the Board to act as he directed on public affairs. He transmitted no peremptory orders to that Board through his spokesman, nor did he call in the members separately to his office to direct them what to do or say. But he did take the keenest interest in the work of the several departments, consult with the commissioners and give them his unqualified assistance and support."

Wall credited Kiel with a low water rate for manufacturers, and to charitable institutions. He told of Kiel's interest in the waterworks and said Kiel supported the program by which the old waterworks plant was increased in capacity, by expenditure of $5,000,000 without a bond issue. He told of Kiel's work for the waterworks bonds and the rest of the 1923 bond issue, and said construction on the new waterworks plant amounting to about $1,250,000, including the most difficult and hazardous work involved in the job, was done before Kiel went out of office in 1925.

He also credited Kiel with the establishment of the present filtration system in 1915. Before that time, he said, the water, though clarified a dozen years before, was often unsatisfactory — since, its clearness has been uniform.

Official Campaign Manager Denies Kiel Levied on Scrubwomen.

A denial of Mayor Miller's charge that during the Kiel administration the scrubwomen at the City Hall were levied upon for campaign contributions was issued today by Ross C. Hallock, office campaign manager for former Mayor Kiel, who declared that at no time during Kiel's 12 years in office were women employed in scrubbing, such work always being delegated to Negro janitors.

"Everybody knows," Hallock said, "that Mayor Miller's city hall machine is functioning from heads of departments down to office boys in the interest of his campaign. City employes are being whipped into line right and left. How different conditions were when Kiel was Mayor."

KIEL REITERATES "CONSTRUCTIVE" CAMPAIGN POLICY

Former Mayor Says Real Issues Have Been Almost Lost in Contradictory Statements.

The constructive issue of the mayoralty campaign, as he sees it, was defined at the Thirteenth Ward Republican Club last night by former Mayor Kiel, opponent of Mayor Miller for the Republican nomination, but Kiel praised the valeu of constructive criticism. Miller has complained that Kiel's campaign was devoted to criticising the present administration and Kiel has insisted that criticism was deserved.

"So many contradictions have come up in this campaign," Kiel told the gathering, at American Lodge Hall, Gravois avenue and Bates street, "that the constructive issue has been somewhat lost. The constructive issue is to make St. Louis a better city; to do the things provided for in the bond issue within the amounts allotted; to induce industries to locate here; to build subways and speedways to handle our traffic; to provide rapid transit so the car rider can get to and from work in less time; to develop the river front so as to beautify it and reclaim the blighted property east of Fourth street.

"The criticism that has been made has been constructive," Kiel continued, with reference to his statements about Miller's administration. "You will never in your days see another illustration of money being spent so extravagantly as in the street lighting system and the courthouse. I'll see that the rest of the bond issue projects are kept within the estimates or ask the people if those amounts can be exceeded."

Agrees With Lambert.

Kiel called the attention of the audience of more than 400 persons that many streets in their neighborhood had not been provided with electric light, but he told how Gravois avenue had been improved in his administration, to the benefit of property. Mentioning Albert Bond Lambert's criticism of the city for failure to employ expert aid in developing the municipal airport, Kiel said, "Maj. Lambert's right," and the candidate renewed his pledge to create a commission of airport experts, if elected. East St. Louis, he added, "is grabbing a wonderful opportunity through the new airports there."

At three meetings last night Kiel emphasized the fact that ballots are secret under the law, for the purpose of assuring city employes who may wish to vote for him that they can do so without fear of losing their jobs. He said:

"I read a statement by the Mayor in the papers today that pleased me very much. He said City Hall employes were free to vote as they pleased and that there would be no coercion. I see also the chairman of the Election Board has said the ballot would be secret and sacred and no one can check up to see how any city employe voted, to make him lose his job. We left the employes free during my 12 years at City Hall. With that statement from the Mayor there will be no intimidation at City Hall, although men were afraid they were going to lose their jobs. Im sure that statement will be carried out and I know we are going to have an honest election.

"Mayor Clears Atmosphere."

"I saw many city employes wearing Miller buttons and they were somewhat embarrassed but said they had to wear them in order to hold their jobs. I'm glad the Mayor has cleared the atmosphere. Those of you who come in contact with city employes can tell them they won't lose their jobs if they vote as they want because Mayor Miller said so."

Kiel is hopeful of tacit support from a considerable number of persons on the city payroll. Mrs. Carrie Tillman, a Negro, Republican committeewoman from the Sixteenth Ward, presided at a meeting he addressed at Compton and Park avenues. She had pretended to support Miller in order, as she said, "to protect jobs" of resdients of her ward, but now she is for Kiel. A number of Negroes, including precinct workers, were present and Kiel praised the importance of their tasks in the political scheme, saying he had begun his public career as a precinct worker at the behest of a Republican leader who formerly lived across the street from his hall. He counseled his hearers to conduct themselves in the campaign so as to avoid making enemies.

Picturing St. Louis after Memorial and Union Station plazas are built, the former Mayor said: "The result of this campaign will largely determine the progress to be made in St. Louis in the next four years. Much has been done but much remains to be done. With the co-operation of all the people St. Louis is going to be the greatest metropolitan city west of Chicago and New York."

At the Midtown Kiel Club, 3313 Olive street, Kiel discussed the bond issue, asserting: "Perhaps we are going to wind up $15,000,000 to $30,000,000 short of enough to do the work. The bond expenditures could have been kept within the amount provided by economy. We're going to carry out the 24 planks of my platform. There is no doubt in my mind as to the result of the election."

MAYOR CHARGES KIEL WORKER SAYS HE IS KU KLUXER

Declares Old Gossip Has Been Revived in an Effort to Get Negro and Jewish Vote.

The skeleton of the Ku Klux Klan was dragged out of its closet, dusted off and injected into the mayoralty campaign by Mayor Miller last night.

After adhering closely to a formula in two speeches before Republican organization meetings, he appeared at 6800 Manchester avenue where he went afield to deny charges made four years ago that he was a member of the Klan, in order to lead up to a charge that a Kiel lieutenant had tried to "buy" a Negro committeewoman's support for $500.

"You people are my friends and I know I can talk to you like friends," the Mayor told the members of the Twenty-Fourth Ward Miller-for-Mayor Club. "You know what I went through four years ago. You know that a paper was sent out alleging that I was a member of the Ku Klux Klan and you realize that there are 35,000 colored voters and at least 200,000 Lutherans in the city who are opposed to that organization. You realize that every one of our Hungarian, Bohemian, Polish and Jewish voters are against it, and you realize that a great many people are willing to take any statement made as the truth.

Attributes Offer to Carl Dubinsky.

"Four years ago a man named Carl Dubinsky circulated that paper. I put up $20,000 in cash and was willing to let the Archbishop of St. Louis be the judge and offered to give the $20,000 to any Jewish, Catholic, Protestant or colored charity if they could prove I had attended a Klan meeting expressed a desire to belong or expressed approval of it.

"Dubinsky got up in a Jewish orthodox church and apologized for it and said he was wrong. Now he is working for my opponent. He is calling in the colored committeemen and committeewomen, reviving that old gossip. Mrs. Oldham of the Twenty-third Ward will tell you about it; how he offered her $500 to join my opponent's organization. I think it is the dirtiest, filthiest, . . . . . I cannot find words that a decent citizen would use to properly describe it.

"I feel this way about it. I don't have to join any organization to be a hundred per cent American. I have the honor of having my great-great-great-grandfather be the chairman of the organization that wrote the Constitution of the United States. I also have the honor, on my maternal grandmother's side, of having her great-great-grandfather be the Quartermaster-General of the Revolutionary Army any everyone of my relatives on my mother's side have fought in all of the wars, and I served 18 months in the last World War."

The Mayor's other addresses were before the Twenty-second Ward Republican organization at Euclid and Natural Birdge avenues and before a mass meeting of Seventh, Eighth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth Ward Republicans at Jefferson and Lafayette avenues.

Denies Coercing City Employes.

In each of the three speeches he asserted that his opponents had engaged in a strenuous campaign of vilification. He asserted that he had never discharged any city employe who opposed his political aspirations.

"I am proud," he said, "of what has been done under my administration. I am not going to get in any argument about the courthouse. It seems strange that one of our Judges lacked the dignity of a Judge to criticise it very severely. Yet on the front page of the platform of my opponent there appears a picture of that wonderful building. Isn't that strange?

"If we had not completed that courthouse there would not have been sufficient room for the Judges and the Court of Appeals and for one of the most necessary things—I think Judge Grimm will agree with me—the law library."

The Mayor declared that officers of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. had described the new lighting system as the "most brilliant, the most extensive and the largest business lighting system in America."

He related that four years ago he had appointed an airport committee and remarked: "Now I understand that when Victor Miller is defeated, an airport committee will be appointed."

Discusses Kiel's Transit Plank.

He discussed former Mayor Kiel's rapid transit plank, and declared that the present administration had done everything possible to further rapid transit.

"Probably if something had been done about rapid transit eight years ago, we would have it now," he declared, continuing with the remark that his opponent's proposed river front improvement" should have been started 10 or 15 years ago.'

The Mayor reviewed various bond issue projects, declaring that he had been carried up to the limit of legal expenditure. He asserted that he had so reorganized the city legal department on taking office that it had disposed of condemnation work which would have taken 25 years under the system formerly in use.

BANDIT LEADER WHO KILLED TWO AMERICANS SLAIN

Candilerio Villegas With 8 More of His Followers Shot Dead in Clash With Mexican Troops.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, March 2.—Letters professing hatred of "Gringos"—the Mexican term of derision for Americans—today offered an explanation of the killing of J. M. Underwood and G. C. Aiesthrope by Guanajuato bandits last week.

The letters were found on the body of Candilario Villegas, who with eight of his followers was killed yesterday. Federal troops had pursued them since the two Americans were kidnaped from their mining camp bunks last week.

One of the letters was addressed to a person in Trapuato, Guanajuato, and contained the announcement Villegas had "captured and executed two Gringos." Another letter said, "the only means of ending our misfortunes is to strike against these accursed Gringos."

Dying with Villegas, chief of the party of kidnapers yesterday, were his lieutenant, Magdaleno Ibarra, and seven of the rank and file of their group. Their bodies were taken to the town of Dolores Hidalgo and placed on public view in the main plaza.

The immediate cause of the downfall of Villegas was described as treachery. One of his men captured in an encounter Thursday led the pursuing Federal soldiers to his retreat at a place called Mesa de la Visnaga. It was there the group was surprised and yesterday's battling, lasting three hours, took place. Besides the dead, four wounded were captured. The troops continued their pursuit of the rest.

Aiesthorpe and Underwood were kidnaped the night of Feb. 20, and killed apparently after a demand for $7500 ransom money had been paid. Their bodies were found after the first clash of troops with the group Friday of last week, were killed in that battle, and more Thursday in an encounter at El Chorro.

News of yesterday's battle was contained in a report made by Gen. Bonifacio Salinas, commanding the pursuers, to President Emilio Portes Gil.

ST. LOUIS CHAMBER FAVORS CHANGE IN SMALL LOAN LAW

Would Require Report on Profits and Stating of Interest Rate in Advertisements.

SEEKS MORE DATA ON 42 PCT. PLAN

F. B. Coleman Says Business Is "Very Hazardous" —Net Earnings of Successful Firm 4 Pct.

The Legislative Committee of the Chamber of Commerce has adopted a report of a subcommittee recommending material changes in the small-loan law enacted by the Legislature in 1927 and legalizing interest charges of 3½ per cent a month, or 42 per cent a year, by licensed lenders on loans of $10 to $300.

The report, submitted Thursday, did not recommend a change in the interest rate, but said the opinion of the subcommittee was the present rate should be continued until data could be obtained as to the profits of the lenders, and that as soon as profits justified it, the rate should be cut.

One of the changes recommended was an amendment that would require all lenders licensed under the act to file at least once a year with the State Finance Commissioner complete operating and financial reports that would make possible an accurate determination of their profits. Under the present law, in the form recommended by the Russell Sage Foundation, the Finance Commissioner is required to examine the lenders once a year, but the extent of the examination is not defined and no reports are required of capital invested, volume of business, earnings or other details.

Wants Rate Advertised.

Another recommended amendment would require the lenders to state plainly in all their advertising the rate of interest to be charged.

The report also recommended that section 16 of the uniform small-loan law be put into the Missouri act. This section, which is designed to bring salary buyers under the law, was left out of the Missouri act two years ago, apparently in accordance with a working agreement between the 42 per cent lenders and the salary buyers not to interfere with each other's business.

Attention was called to its omission and the reason for it by the Post-Dispatch about two weeks ago and immediately thereafter an amendment to include section 16 was introduced by Senator Brogan of St. Louis at the instance of the Better Business Bureau.

In discussion of the subcommittee's report before its adoption members of the legislative committee raised the question of whether it would not be possible to reduce the interest rate and still give the lenders a reasonable profit.

Net Profit of 4 Per Cent.

Frank B. Coleman, chairman of the subcommittee, said information gathered by the subcommittee showed one of the largest and most successful companies operating in St. Louis had made net profits of only about 4 per cent on invested capital in 1928, but hoped to do better when the business becomes better established. David Lichtenstein, a member of the committee and owner of several 42 per cent offices in St. Louis, filed a statement with the committee saying his net profits were at the rate of only 2¾ per cent a year.

Coleman also told the committee the business was "very hazardous" and therefore entitled to more than ordinary margin of possible profit.

Virtually all of the amendments recommended by the committee were suggested by Charles M. Hay, attorney for the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railway Clerks' Association. But Hay also recommends reducing the interest rate to 1½ per cent a month, asserting that is sufficient to give a reasonable profit on the business soundly and economically conducted.

Several bills are pending in the Legislature to repeal or amend the law and further hearings before committees of the Legislature are set for Tuesday night at Jefferson City.

GETS 20-YEAR PRISON TERM FOR SHOOTING SON TO DEATH

Mallalieu Cravens, 25, of Alton, Killed 4-Year-Old Child After Quarrel With Wife.

Mallalieu Cravens, 25 years old, who shot and killed his 4-year-old son, Louis, at Alton, last May 4, was sentenced to 20 years in Chester penitentiary by Circuit Judge Brown at Edwardsville yesterday, when he pleaded guilty of murder.

Cravens, an employe of the Illinois Glass Co., killed his son and then wounded himself in the breast, after a quarrel with his wife, Mrs. Margaret Cravens. He was near death at the County Hospital in Edwardsville for several months before he began to improve and was removed to the County Jail. He has not yet recovered completely.

Searching Sewers for Missing Pearls

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

FIVE men are engaged this week in hoisting sediment from downtown sewers and straining it in a search for 65 pearls which made up the $37,000 necklace lost by Mrs. Warren T. Chandler while on a downtown shopping trip Nov. 22. Insurance companies which reimbursed Mrs. Chandler for her loss are financing the operation which, so far, has resulted in the recovery of a handful of small change, some hotel silverware and a few "synthetic" pearls. The treasure hunters are shown at Ninth street and Lucas avenue.

ONLY 'APPROXIMATE' FACTS IN BANKRUPTCY

Duckworth Twins Vague on Figures as to Their Radio Business.

A study in approximations was created in Bankruptcy Court yesterday by the testimony of Marshall David and Milton Donald Duckworth, 22-year-old twins, whose venture into the business world as the Duckworth Radio Service Co., 3935 South Grand boulevard, left them facing bankruptcy and a loss of $4000 after eight months.

Marshall David Duckworth testified that his brother entered the company as a partner "approximately" last June, at which time the business was "approximately" square with the world. When they went into voluntary bankruptcy Jan. 22 (Marshall David was certain of that date) they listed debts of $9100 against assets of $1100. The trustee was desirous of learning how this deficiency came about which, after allowing for $4000 in doubtful debts, amounted to $4000. Marshall David, however, explained that they kept only "approximate" business records until several weeks before bankruptcy, when they drew up a set of books.

Finally Began Bookkeeping.

"We made up the books because we were anticipating incorporation," he said. "We showed them to our lawyer."

"What did he advise?" asked the attorney for the trustee.

"Well, he advised us to go in bankruptcy instead. Our overhead was too high," he continued. "In the eight months we spent $480 for rent, approximately $800 for advertising, $440 for telephone and automobile service and drew $2000, approximately, that is, for living expenses. We didn't pay for the advertising, though."

"That is a total of $3000?" he was asked.

"Approximately," answered Marshall David Duckworth.

"What were your profits?" "We made approximately 25 per cent on a gross income of $4000."

"But that would leave you with a loss of $520 instead of the deficiency of $4000."

Lost on Defective Tubes.

Marshall David wasn't sure, but he did know that they had lost a great deal of money replacing defective tubes. "We gave a greater guarantee than the company which made them," he explained.

"And we sold sets at a loss. If a man came in with approximately $100 we would give him nearly anything.'

"He probably could have had your business for that, is that correct?" "Approximately," said Marshall David Duckworth.

"One more question. When did the collection agents begin hounding you?" "It's always been that way," said the bankrupt sadly.

Milton Donald Duckworth said he knew nothing about the business. "I just did the work," he explained.

The hearing was continued until next Friday.

FALLS GETTING OUT OF AUTO, DIES OF FRACTURED SKULL

Zappelli Zaccaria, also known as Joe Castian, 49 years old, died at the Deaconess Hospital yesterday of a fractured skull suffered Feb. 17, when he fell and struck his head on the concrete floor of a garage as he was alighting from his automobile in the rear of 2318 Edwards street, where he roomed.

Zaccaria told Joseph Miromonti, with whom he lived, that he fell when the heel of his shoe caught on the running board of the car. He was taken to Christian Hospital returning home three days later. Last Wednesday he collapsed and was taken to the Deaconess Hospital.

Zaccaria was part owner of a saloon at Sarah street and Hodiamont avenue. His wife and three children live in Italy. An inquest will be held.

MAWSON THANKS BYRD FOR GOOD WILL NOTE

Australian Explorer Says His Expedition Will Work West of Ross Sea.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Times.

LONDON, March 2.—Sir Douglas Mawson, the leader of the Australian Antarctic expedition, last night sent this reply to the message of good will from Commander Byrd, for transmission through the New York Times to the base on the ice barrier:

"Commander Byrd:

"Your cordial message of good wishes for the success of our proposed Australian expedition is greatly appreciated.

"We shall be operating in the Australian section west of the Ross Sea dependency, unfortunately too far removed to pay a friendly call at Little America.

"Should you visit our territory, please help yourselves to seal and penguin steaks at our expense.

"Congratulations on your already magnificent achievement, illustrating the 100 per cent character of yourself and your party. May you go forward to still greater success."

12 ARRESTED IN NEARBY BAR AFTER $8000 LIQUOR SEIZURE

Police Find Henry Oldani and 11 Others in His Saloon Opposite Raided Garage.

Seeking the office of the garage-bootlegging depot at 219 North Cardinal avenue, in which $8000 worth of alcohol and whisky was confiscated by prohibition agents Thursday, police yesterday raided Henry Oldani's saloon across the street, at 218, and arrested the proprietor and 11 other men.

The prisoners gave various occupations, ranging from shipbuilder to miner, and professed ignorance of bootlegging. In a shed in the rear of the saloon police reported seizing eight cartons of half-pint flasks, 13 kegs and an assortment of bottles, corks and sugar sacks.

Oldani, police said, was arrested last year on the levee as he stepped from a liquor-laden houseboat. Five passenger cars and two trucks, which police think were used for hauling liquor, were seized in the garage.

In connection with the raid, police have heard that bootleggers are increasing their stocks on hand in anticipation of a jump in prices when the new Jones law increasing maximum penalties for prohibition violations, becomes effective.

KITCHEN CHOSEN COMMANDER OF MISSOURI CONFEDERATES

Charles Harvey of St. Louis, has resigned as Commander of the United Confederate Veterans of Missouri because of ill health, and Cortez A. Kitchen, also of St. Louis, has been elected to take his place, it was announced yesterday.

Commander Kitchen has been at the head of the St. Louis Camp of Confederate veterans No. 731, since the death of Commander Harvy Salman.

The new leader said that he was expecting a large delegation from Missouri to attend the National Confederate reunion this year which will be June 5-9 at Charlottesville, N. C. He is now sending out instructions.

Commander Kitchen said he would be unable to accept the invitation of President-elect Hoover to attend the inaugural ceremonies at Washington.

Topic of Percival Chubb.

Percival Chubb, leader of the St. Louis Ethical Society, who has just returned from a trip East, will speak on "Rationalism and Reverence" at a meeting of the society at Sheldon Memorial, 3648 Washington boulevard, at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning. The Steindel Ensemble, led by Max Steindel, will give a special musical program.

Matthew Obernich, a Miner, Suffers Skull Fracture; Other Accidents.

Matthew Obernich, a miner, 301 Rutger street, suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries at 2:30 a. m. today, when his automobile crashed into a parked truck of the Union Electric Light and Power Co. on the Municipal Bridge. He is in a serious condition at city hospital.

Edwin Gordon, a repair man for the Union Electric Co., had parked the truck while he repaired a light on the bridge.

Robert Rowley, 6 years old, 3001 Magazine street, suffered fractures of the right arm and leg yesterday afternoon, when struck by an automobile driven by William Weaver, 4831 St. Louis avenue, at Garrison avenue and Magazine street.

Two women and a man were cut and bruised at 1:15 a. m. in a collision between automobiles driven by Motor Cycle Policeman Orville Cripps, 3456 St. Vincent avenue, and Arnold Weitzel, 823 South Sixth street, at Seventh and Chestnut streets. Weitzel and his wife, Anna, and Miss Marjorie McNamara, 4000 St. Louis avenue, who was riding with Cripps, were treated at city hospital. Weitzel objected to being arrested and was charged with careless driving and resisting arrest. Cripps was not on duty at the time.

Marshal Sanford, a Negro, 5812½ Prescott avenue, was cut and bruised at 7:30 p. m. when his automobile was struck by a switch engine at Talcott avenue and the Wabash tracks. Sanford's wife, who was with him, was uninjured.

NICARAGUA CANAL SURVEY BILL SENT TO COOLIDGE

Senate Accepts House Amendments to Measure for Investigation of Route.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Building.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Unless President Coolidge withholds his approval an early survey will be made under the direction of the Secretary of War to determine what route should be followed by a canal across Nicaragua and the approximate cost. Congressional action on the proposed survey was completed last night when the Senate accepted the amendments attached to the Edge joint resolution by the House.

An item of $150,000 to pay the expenses of the survey already had been incorporated in the deficiency appropriation bill. The Edge resolution in its final form omits the Senate provision requesting the President to negotiate with Nicaragua, Costa Rica, Honduras and Salvador regarding rights which they may assert should Congress determine to build the canal. The main provision—that calling for the Nicaraguan survey—was untouched.

The President is also authorized to direct a survey to determine the feasibility and cost of increasing the facilities at the Panama Canal. An amendment by Senator Hawes permitting the President to call upon civilian engineers to assist the army engineers was acepted. The resolution went through the Senate in spite of a determined filibuster against it by Dill (Dem.), Washington.

ANGLO-AMERICAN PARLEY BRITTEN SOUGHT IS REJECTED

English Branch of Interparliamentary Union Won't Consider It, Now, at Least.

By ARTHUR E. MANN,
Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1929, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. (the New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

LONDON, March 2.—United States Representative Fred A. Britten's proposal of Jan. 28 for naval conference of British and American parliamentarians under the auspices of the Inter-Parliamentary Union has been politely but definitely rejected, for the time being at least, by the executive committee of the British branch of the Union, the correspondent learns today.

Sir Arthur Shirley Benn, chairman of the executive committee, has notified Commander J. M. Kenworthy, Laborite member of Parliament for Hull, of the committee's decision and the latter has communicated the information to Britten.

It was Commander Kenworthy who cabled to Britten welcoming the latter's original proposal some months ago on behalf of himself and a group of his colleagues and who has since then been acting as liaison officer between Britten and members of the British Parliament.

SLAYER'S SLAYER KILLS JUGO-SLAVIAN OFFICIAL

Madman, Who Shot Zena Bey's Assassin in Court, Murders Three More Persons.

By the Associated Press.

SKOPLJE, Jugo-Slavia, March 2.—Zia Vuciturna, who shot and killed Alcibiades Bebe, the assissin of Zena Bey in Prague last November, today became violently insane while on the Belgrade-Skoplje Express and killed Inspector Savitchitch of the Jugo-Slav Ministry of the Interior and two Serbian soldiers.

Firing indiscriminately at those in the coach, he also wounded several other passengers. Eventually he was overpowered and put in chains.

Vuciturna had been liberated only a few days ago and expelled from Czecho-Slovakia on the ground of insanity. He had been placed on the train en route back to his relatives in Albania.

Keen indignation has been expressed here against the Czecho-Slovak authorities for releasing the man who already had been pronounced insane by Czecho-Slovak alienists and for allowing him to travel without an armed guard.

PITCHER RIP COLLINS HAS FIRST WORKOUT AT BROWNIE CAMP

HOWLEY LIKES WORK OF GRIMES, FERRELL, JENKINS AND BADGRO; EXPECTS STRELECKI TO PROSPER

By John E. Wray
Sports Editor, Post-Dispatch.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 2.—Rip Collins, rugged 205 pound Texas giant, one of Dan Howley's pitching acquisitions, had his first workout with the Brownies, this morning. It was a perfunctory effort and consisted largely of throwing a few "soft" ones to a catcher and a jog around the park.

Today's workout was interfered with by rain which held up practice for about three-fourths of an hour, at noon time. The squad resumed its usual light workout, without the infield defensive play. The diamond was too wet to permit of this.

There will be no workout tomorrow for the main squad, but the pitchers and catchers will limber up at 9:30 o'clock in the morning. Tuesday the veterans are expected and real work will start, with the pitchers fairly well advanced.

There are no casualties reported by Tommy Bramell's department. The hospital squad is not yet begun, although there are some minor complaints reported. Oscar Estrada has a sore forefinger on his pitching hand, Eddie Grimes has a sore elbow, George Stanton has a trick knee, Rick Ferrell is just recovering from a stomach illness suffered after the first day's workout, and Clyde Manion has a sore shoulder.

Howley Still Limping.

Manager Dan Howley is still limping, but is cheerfully watching the development of his men, with Killefer and Austin giving most of the orders in directing the work of the players.

Howley checked the too ambitious efforts of several soft-armed boys who were steaming their throws with midsummer eagerness.

"I can't have them laming their arms at this stage of the game," Howley remarked as he chased Crowder and Coffman to the dressing rooms. "More harm can be done in the first week of training than in the entire five weeks, due to eagerness of some of the men to work. I have tried to time the workouts of men so that they will come along gradually and avoid undue soreness."

Howley starts his men at work slowly each day and gradually warms them up in batting practice and then puts them through fielding work. He will not ask much in the way of playing his squad until March 16, when the first exhibition game is to be played with the Columbus Club.

Boosts Young Players.

Howley commented interestingly on the workout as the individual men did their stuff. He is strong for Eddie Grimes at third base, Dick Ferrell behind the bat, Jenkins and Badgro in the outfield and for several of his pitchers, both new members of the staff and those with the club last year who did not do so well, as expected. Howley had a keen eye for each move, good and bad.

"There's Eddie Grimes at the plate—watch his actions. I don't like that step he takes when he swings—it's too long. He's a great fielder, it's his batting I will have to watch. See that—he foozled that one. We'll have to coach him considerably. You know Grimes hit .344 in the Western League but I guess you can charge off about 50 points for big league superiority."

Dondero, a burly looking young man with powerful shoulders, clouted a savage drive to left field which cleared the fence by three feet in fair territory.

"There's one of the boys we will have to watch," said Manager Dan. "What a sock that was and look at him run! You know that left field fence is 383 feet from home plate. Only two other hits over this fence in fair ground have been made, they tell me. That shows you how this boy can lean on them."

Being Groomed at Short.

The West Palm Beach Park, by the way, is one of the largest in Florida. The right field fence is 387 feet from the plate along the foul line and center field fence is 430 feet. Home runs are almost always made within the park. Babe Ruth has appeared here and his best effort in fence-clearing was in foul territory, where the fence is much closer.

Incidentally, this immense playing area gives the fielders splendid workouts both in fly catching and in sprinting. If major league parks had as large dimensions, the world would see what outfielding really means; but the home run industry would go on the rocks.

As to Dondero, Howley is evidently grooming him to make a bid for the job of understudy for Kress, if the latter fails to sign or to make good at bat. There seems little doubt in Howley's mind that Dondero will be a strong asset.

Big Jenkins, outfielder, who hit 27 home runs for Wichita Falls last year, with a batting average of .348, was also closely scrutinized. He swings well.

"Here's a lad," Howley said, as a young fellow went to bat, "who looks the part of a great catcher—Rick Ferrell. He tells me that nobody ever told him a thing about catching, that he just picked it up himself. Every move he makes, however, reveals a fine prospect. I think he will make good and be our third man behind the bat. Manion, of course, is a certainty. He has a rubber arm. That's why I let him throw the way he is doing. See that peg? He snaps them down and it doesn't hurt his arm. Ferrell and the others I have to hold back, but Manion apparently is immune."

Dan Likes This Badgro.

Howley likes his husky outfielder, Badgro, notwithstanding he is green and erratic.

"In one exhibition game we played last year," Howley commented, "this boy lined out five of the finest, cleanest hits I have seen credited to one man. But in the same game he made five misplays—one for each hit. However, he isn't that bad, and he loves to play ball. That's what I like about any ballplayer. If he is interested, he'll come through."

The pitchers, of course, were not showing anything—just lobbing them over. At this stage of the workout, Howley allows no man who has not been working before his arrival to throw full speed.

One of the interesting players is Big Chad Kimsey of Tulsa, who is not on the training camp roster, but who is here with both feet—and they are "some feet." They have to be to support his altitude of 6 feet 3 inches, and his weight of some 210 pounds. This giant can throw a fast ball that Vangilder would envy; and, better still, he can hit like an outfielder ought to hit. He has only had two years of experience, one with Muskogee and one with Tulsa, but Vice President McEvoy thinks he is about ready for a big league trial.

Howley is hopeful that his finely built young athlete, Strelecki, is due for a real pitching year this season.

"This fellow has the power and the stuff and is due to come through. I can say the same thing for Coffman, a fine young fellow who lacked experience."

Buvid Born in Poland.

One of the hurlers who tossed to the batters in practice was John Buvid, who is credited with being Scotch. He was born in Poland, however, and his parents emigrated to Scotland when he was very young.

"With that Scotch training he ought to be stingy with base hits," it was suggested to Howley.

"And he ought to be good in the tight spots" was a rejoinder.

"Let's hope you're both right," Howley laughed.

The workouts will continue without attempts to play games until after the regulars reach here next Tuesday. Then the fun will begin—also the tragedy, for, with the arrival of the regulars, it is a certainty that some of the youngsters will be shunted into the background.

Only 10 pitchers, six or seven infielders, three catchers and five outfielders can be carried, and it is pretty well known, right now, which men will be retained.

Pitcher McKain Ruled Free Agent By Commissioners

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 2.

BASEBALL COMMISSIONER KENESAW M. LANDIS has ordered that Pitcher Harold McKain of Cleveland be given his unconditional release.

McKain was released outright by Cleveland to the Decatur Three-I League club last year and then released by Decatur to Cleveland. Landis held this a form of optional agreement, informing McKain he is a free agent.

College Stars In Indoor Title Meet, Tonight

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 2.—More than 400 athletes from 27 colleges will compete tonight for the indoor intercollegiate A. A. A. A. track and field championship won by Cornell last year by the margin of half a point.

Georgetown, runner-up a year ago, is one of the strongest contenders.

A special banked track, probably the world's fastest indoor track, and new lighting arrangements for the jumps and pole vault, bring promise of new records. The vault mark, which the great Sabin Carr of Yale set at only 13 feet, 3¾ inches, is expected to go down before the assaults of Carr's successor, Fred Sturdy.

Lewis Throws Garibaldi

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, March 2.—Ed (Strangler) Lewis, former wrestling champion, defeated Gino Garibaldi in easy fashion last night, pinning the Italian in 48 minutes with a double wrist lock and scissors. Lewis weighed about 30 pounds more than his opponent.

Jack Smith of Fort Worth, Tex., downed Howard Cantonwine, Webster City, Ia., with a crotch hold in 21 minutes.

Sunday Will Be Just Another Day for Work, Southworth Announces

By L. A. McMaster
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

AVON PARK, Fla., March 2.—There will be actual work on the mound for the veterans of the Cardinals' pitching staff today for the first time during the current training season here.

After three days of running, playing catch, engaging in bunting games and other routine exercising, Alexander, Haines and Mitchell, and possibly Sherdel, will be given a chance to shoot the ball over the plate. Doubt as to Sherdel's joining in this second phase of training for the flingers on this date is due to the fact that he arrived one day later than the others, but on his first day here, Thursday, he said he would be ready by Saturday.

The two veteran right-handers, Alexander and Haines, along with Mitchell, have been among the hardest workers among approximately 30 players on the scene since Wednesday morning. Two days of warm sunshine, and one cloudy day, have seen the three old-timers chasing around like kids full of play. One thing in their favor, and applying also to the other veterans in camp, according to reports to Manager Southworth, is that all escaped during the winter from one of the chief ailments of pitchers, neuritis.

Good Hurling Prospects.

Batting to the outfield also will be resumed today after a layoff because of a night-time sprinkle, which left the grass too wet to risk chasing fungoes yesterday.

From the looks of the young fellows in camp, the Cardinal farm teams are going to be well supplied with pitchers of ability this season. Coach Gabby Street, the veteran catcher, says the flingers working out with the champion Red Birds, who are destined for Houston, Danville and other points for the 1929 season, are of a high class.

Street, of course, puts in a lot of time with the heavers and is in better position to judge them than any one else.

Among the young batterymen showing promise of future greatness is a southpaw named Heise, last year with Waco and now the property of the Danville club in the Three-Eye League. Heise comes in for a lot of coaching from Street, and the left-hander should win a lot of games for the "School" team during 1929.

Will Work Out Tomorrow.

The poor fish of Florida Ridge Lakes will suffer little from the angling efforts of Cardinal ball players this season. In past campaigns, the local town ordinances against Sunday games have let the players in for several days off. But not this year.

Tomorrow is a day off in the schedule, but Manager Southworth has announced that there will be practice just the same, and the boys won't have to worry about catching the big ones. For five successive Sundays after tomorrow there are exhibition games.

A ban on swimming and the fact that the training sessions are double-headers, leaving little time before or after workouts for golf, keeps the men occupied with baseball all the time.

Wilson Holds Record.

Catcher Jimmy Wilson holds the squad record for running around the ball park. Whereas, the men started with a single sprint around the field, and now go two times around, Wilson takes about six or seven turns at the end of each workout.

One change in the program has come in the shape of mental instruction. Yesterday, Southworth made it an order for all the young fellows to eat at the clubhouse, instead of the optional trip back to the hotel for lunch and took them out on the grass in center field for a long lecture on how to make good in the great national game.

Word finally has come from Gus Mancuso, catcher. He will start for camp Monday from his home in Dallas, Tex. Gus remained at home to celebrate the arrival of a baby girl.

LOCAL CLASSIC TENPIN TOURNEY OPENS TODAY

The stage is set for the second annual A. B. C. classic, which will get under way at the Washington alleys this afternoon, with the first squad rolling at 4:30 p. m.

The alleys have been resurfaced especially for the big show, and a new set of pins will be furnished each squad, giving each bowler entered an equal chance.

Among the entrants are several bowlers from out of town, among them Albert Osborn, who hails from New York City. Osborn will compete on the opening squad, while H. Livingston and Ott Peters from Springfield, Ill., are scheduled for 9:15 p. m. this evening.

Eighty-six entries have been received to date, a few openings remaining on the 7 and 9:15 squads this evening and the 1, 3:15 and 10 p. m. squads tomorrow.

Prizes will be awarded for high total for eight games, high first four, high last four and a special prize for the high man on each squad.

The 16 members of the first squad will line up as follows: H. S. Kaer, Merritt Wilson, E. G. Beck, Geo. Metzler, Ed. Heuremann, C. R. Stein, Leo Exler, Homer Ralston, M. Purpura, Dave Knapp, R. Volz, Geo. Mueninghaus, H. R. Crock, Rudi Meyer, John Jabby and Earl Fiedler.

SCHAAP TAKES FIFTH STRAIGHT IN CUE TOURNEY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., March 2.—Eric Schaap of St. Louis advanced a step closer to the Western amateur balkline billiard championship here yesterday when he defeated J. J. Peabody of Chicago, 250 to 163, in 36 innings.

It was Schaap's fifth victory in as many matches and he remains undefeated. He has two more opponents to face, R. V. Fessendan of Madison, Wis., and Harry Postal of Detroit. He will play one today and the other Sunday. The order of the matches has not been decided.

Because Schaap and Peabody were tied for high average game at 14.70, their match drew the largest crowd of the tournament. A close contest appeared in prospect, but the St. Louis entry quickly pulled into the lead and held it. He had two runs of 25 points each and others of 22, 15 and 17. Peabody's longest string was 22. Schaap clinched the match in the thirty-fifth inning when he had his second run of 25. That left him 10 points from the goal and he reached it with an unfinished run in the next frame.

The St. Louis player continues to lead the tournament in games won, high average and high run. Because of his consistent play he has become a general favorite to take the title.

ARMAND EMANUEL GETS TECHNICAL KAYO OVER COAST BOXER IN NINTH

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 2.—Armand Emanuel, San Francisco heavyweight, defeated Larry Seratti, also of San Francisco, by a technical knockout in the ninth round of a 10-round match here last night. The referee stopped the fight with Seratti still on his feet, but taking a terrible beating.

Lutze to Meet Larrea.

Renato Gardini's withdrawal from the preliminary card for Tuesday night's wrestling show at the New Coliseum and the selection of Nick Lutze, Chicago heavyweight, to replace him as the opponent of Gilberto Martinez Larrea, a 205-pound Mexican grappler, was announced today. Ltuze and Larrea will meet in the second event of a card featuring Jimmy Londos, Greek champion, in a finish tussle with Jim Clinstock of Oklahoma. The semi-windup brings Dick Shikat against Joe "Toots" Mondt.

LA BARBA WINS DECISION OVER BILLY GRIMES

By the Associated Press.

MELBOURNE, Australia, March 2.—Fidel La Barba of Los Angeles, former world's flyweight champion, defeated Billy Grime of Australia on points in a 15-round boxing bout here tonight.

The fight, which was witnessed by a crowd of 10,000 was disappointing. Both men frequently being "counted out" by the crowd for continual clinching.

Grime remained on the defensive practically throughout while the young Italian-American who relinquished his flyweight honors by retiring undefeated, but is now attempting a comeback, scored at times with lefts to the ribs and body. Both men were unmarked at the finish.

La Barba weighed 121¼ and Grime 123½ which makes them featherweights.

Bears' Swimmers Oppose Gophers In Meet Tonight

The Washington University natators will tackle their third Big Ten opponent of the season tonight at the Wilson Pool when they oppose the formidable Minnesota team in a dual meet. In their two previous meets with Western Conference swimmers the Bears have been defeated by Iowa and Northwestern.

Coach Bauer will employ the same starters against the Gophers that defeated the University of Cincinnati swimmers last Saturday night with the exception of Paul Kunkel, who dislocated a shoulder during one of the relay races in that meet. David Litvag, a promising sophomore paddler, will be used in Kunkel's place in the 200-yard relay event and the 50-yard free style.

The chief threats of the visiting team are Lind, Bayers, Hayden and Johnson. All of these men are veterans on the Gopher squad and are expected to extend Heideman, Brenner and Skinner, the Bear aces, in their events. In the fancy diving contest Washington would seem to hold a slight edge with two such capable performers as Nauert and Wolfe. The meet will start at 8 o'clock.

200-yard relay—Minnesota: Crocker, Lind, Wilke, Bates, Hayden, Waidelich. Washington: Skinner, Sample, K. Litvag, Wolfe.

200-yard breast stroke—Minnesota: Finnigan, Brayer. Washington: Brenner, Curtis.

50-yard free style—Minnesota: Crocker, Bates, Hayden, Waidelich. Washington: Litvag, Sample, Moore.

440-yard free style—Minnesota: Hayden, Lahti, Lind. Washington: Skinner, Barngrove.

150-yard back stroke — Minnesota: Marsh, Johnson, Brastad. Washington: Heidemann, Marshall, Barngrove.

100-yard free style—Minnesota: Crocker, Waidelich, Hayden, Bates. Washington: Sample, Moore.

Fancy diving — Minnesota: Nappa, Moore, Woodlery. Washington: Nauert, Wolfe.

PINE STREET Y. M. C. A. QUINTET WINS FROM CARBONDALE, ILL., FIVE

The Renaissance (Negro) five of the Pine Street Y. M. C. A. defeated the Attucks High School of Carbondale, Ill., last night at the Pine Street Y. M. C. A., 23-20. At the end of the first period the Carbondale aggregation was trailing, 14 to 10. Mike was the outstanding player for the locals when he scored 10 points on excellent shooting, including two long shots.

Mt. Calvary Plays Redeemer.

The lead of the North St. Louis Lutheran Basketball League will be decided by the third of the three games, which are carded to be played tonight at the Bethany Hall, Clay and Natural Bridge. Mount Calvary, present leader, meets Redeemer, which is one game behind. The Pilgrim vs. Bethlehem, and the Grave vs. Ebenezer tilts will be one sided, with Pilgrim and Ebenezer favored.

SPORT SALAD by L. C. Davis

Nursery Rhymes.

"Man the weaker, not woman, hospital records indicate."

MAN'S vaunted prowess is at stake,
Hospital records indicate.
His better half is stronger.
Not only does he take to bed
When illness raps him on the head
But also stays there longer.

Full more than half of surgeon's knives
Are probed into the men, while wives
Wax stronger all the while.
There's nothing left for men to do
But give them all the credit due
And up a coat sleeve smile.

For, after all, why shouldn't man
Be glad to linger while he can
Within the clutch of medics?
There's always vixen nurse girls there
To sooth him when he's on a tear,
And help him on his pedics.

So, let the spouses boast physique;
They're sadly lacking in technique—
Hospitals aren't for cursing.
Fraus may get well and move along
But what care men, who aren't so strong
They get a lot more nursing.
—HOWARD COONS.

Mariners Both.

Jack Sharkey reminds one of his famous namesake, Tom Sharkey. They were both sailors.

George Thompson, the laziest man in the world, spent 30 years in bed. Mapping his life out along horizontal lines he kept the even tenor of his methodical way.

See where Gen. Crowder has enlisted for another year with the Browns. Generally speaking it looks like first division.

Some people object to having $24,000,000 added to the dry bill when they haven't even paid last month's liquor bill.

The Transition.

ON the face of the bowler just witness the grins,
And his jubilant air as he topples the pins;
Then watch the same countenance shadowed in gloom
When the ten pins refuse to faw down and go boom!

There were all kinds of people at the Sharkey-Stribling fight except Californians. The sunkist gents were afraid to take a chance on the climate of Florida.

Nevertheless and notwithstanding, Young Stribling is going to tour Europe. Regardless of an occasional setback no power on earth can keep Young Strib from rolling up the mileage.

"Dawes Gives Cup to Young Golfers."

Well, our Vice Presidents have to do something.

We asked a ringsider what he thought of Jack Dempsey's entertainment down at Miami. He said the preliminaries were pretty good.

Do We Hear Seven?

"Offers $4,000,000 in Deal for Giants."

I'll give six!

If Pipgras and Hayworth don't make the grade with the Tigers they ought to fit in nicely with some club in the Bluegrass League.

Headlight Girls' Team Beaten by Sparkman Five

By the Associated Press.

SPARKMAN, Ark., March 2.—The Sparkman High School basketball team easily defeated the St. Louis Headlight girls sextet here last night, 47 to 25.

The game was the first of a two-game series to raise funds to take the Sparklers to the national championship at Wichita next week. The second game will be played at Arkadelphia tonight.

The first half ended 30 to 11, and the local team slackened.

Quinnie Hamm led the scoring with 27 points. Miss Fise also played well for the locals at jumping center, taking the tip-off most of the time. Dot Brown, with 16 points, and E. Nagle and Overte, with four each, played best for the visitors.

MINNEAPOLIS TIES TULSA FOR LEAD BY BEATING PLA-MORS

By the Associated Press.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., March 2.—Minneapolis went into a tie with Tulsa for the lead in the American Hockey Association League by defeating Kansas City, 4 to 0, here last night. The Millers completely outplayed the league leading Pla-Mors throughout the contest and only the remarkable goaltending of Byrne, who was peppered with 41 shots, held the Millers' score down.

HARD ROCK FROM DOWN UNDER CUT TO RIBBONS BY LEFT PUNCHES

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 2.—Jimmy McLarnin is ready to graduate to the welterweight division and he won't do his campaigning with one hand either.

He finally convinced Eastern fistic critics that he was not simply a right-hand slugger when he knocked out tough Joe Glick, the Williamsburg tailor, in the second round of their 10-round battle in Madison Square Garden last night.

True, the knockout punch came from McLarnin's right arm, but twice before the finishing punch the coast star had floored Glick with left hooks. He seemed to have equal power in either hand. Glick crumpled up under a two-fisted barrage.

The Williamsburg tailor, in more than 150 fights, had been knocked out only twice, both these reverses coming when he was campaigning as a featherweight three or four years ago.

Weighing 140¼ pounds last night, McLarnin appears ready to tackle the welterweights. Glick scaled 136½.

Maloney Uses Left to Cut Heeney to Ribbons

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, March 2.—Jimmy Maloney of Boston, rated eight months ago as the easiest "push-over" in the heavyweight flock, was crowding fistiana's top-notchers today as a result of his decision over rugged Tom Heeney of New Zealand.

Maloney met Heeney for the second time last night and had but little trouble grinding the "hard rock" with a succession of left jabs and hooks, the blows which cut the New Zealander to ribbons last July when he met Gene Tunney for the world's title.

Eighteen months ago Tom met Maloney for the first time and dropped him for the 10-count with two right hooks in the opening round.

Heeney's face was cut in several places last night, but Maloney escaped unmarked. The latter's body was not even reddened by the New Zealander's slugging.

Maloney carried eight rounds, Heeney took one and the other was even. Tom's best performance came in the second session when he landed several of his best right hooks on the Maloney chin.

58—OUT-OF-BOUNDS PLAY.

Out-of-bounds plays are coming into prominence more every year. However, they are not real scoring threats but they are a constant threat to the opposing team.

The principles of out-of-bounds plays are the same as the principles of center plays.

The diagram illustrates two out-of-bounds plays. First, spreading the defense and penetrating a man through the opening. Second, applying the rule of hitting the weakness of the defensive men.

Other out-of-bounds plays as shown in the diagram are, first using the guards as blocking posts going in to meet the ball, followed by a three-fourths reverse pivot, then taking the ball for an easy basket.

The other play is using a teammate for a blocking post as illustrated. Be sure the man at the front circle starts first with the teammate who cuts directly in front of him at the opportune time.

BILLIKEN BOXERS OPPOSE ARMOUR TEAM TONIGHT

By Gerald Holland

St. Louis University will venture into the field of intercollegiate boxing competition tonight in a seven-bout meet with Armour Tech of Chicago. The first match is scheduled to start at 8:30 o'clock at the St. Louis U. gymnasium. The prices of admission are 50 cents and $1.

The bout that is expected to feature the program will bring Fred Joseph, the 198-pound heavyweight champion of the university, into action with Vernet Pouyitch, captain of Armour Tech's squad last year. Joseph's opponent weighs 185 pounds.

Joseph has impressed Chuck Byers, the young professional fighter who coaches the Billiken squad, as possessing genuine talent. The big tackle of the football team doesn't lack speed and he is able to take punishment as well as give it. In Toledo, O., the home of both Byers and Joseph, the latter had an excellent record in amateur competition and his showing in workouts with professional fighters —of which K. O. Christner was one—brought him an offer to join Jimmy Bronson's stable. Joseph, however, preferred college football to the ring.

According to advance reports, Joseph's opponent is a two-fisted fighter and a clever boxer. This is his third year with Armour Tech's squad. If the estimate of his coach is correct, Pouyitch should give Joseph a real test.

Chuck Byers is undecided as to the rest of his lineup for the meet but it is likely that Benny Barrett, an experienced welterweight from Youngstown, O., John D. Christoferro, light-heavyweight, Dave Ennis, a middleweight, and Paul Kaveny, bantamweight champion of the university, will see action.

In addition to Pouyitch, the heavyweight, Armour Tech is bringing Marshall Whitfield, light-heavyweight, Larkin, a middleweight and the star of the squad, Buehling, welterweight, and Schwartz, Taylor, and Sandstrom in the lighter division.

Srenco Loses in Handball Tourney

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, March 2.—Joe Griffin of Detroit, defending champion, and George Nelson, southpaw of Baltimore, were to renew an old handball feud in the finals of the National Y. M. C. A. handball tournament here this afternoon.

Griffin won his way to the finals by eliminating Merritt Bates of Columbus, O., 21-7, 21-10, and Jack Srenco of St. Louis, fell before Nelson, 21-8, 21-4.

Nelson, former A. A. U. champion, and Griffin have met three times before and Griffin has won every time. They met in the A. A. U. tournament at Cleveland a few weeks later, and Griffin again was victorious.

HIGH SCHOOL AND PREPARATORY LEAGUE SPORTS

FERGUSON MAY BE DECLARED COUNTY WINNERS

When Wellston High defeated Ferguson High on Wednesday night, the defeat for Ferguson apparently knocked it out of the County League basketball championship, for the loss brought Ferguson's record to two defeats and eight victories, while Maplewood, with one defeat and five victories, went into first place.

However, the possibility has developed that Ferguson may be awarded the title, for Maplewood, in playing only six league games, violated a rule which states that 60 per cent of a team's games must be with league teams. Maplewood has played seven nonleague games.

In explaining Maplewood's stand, Coach Wahlbrink said today that his school had tried but had been unable to schedule games with several quintets in the County League. The schools that declined games were Ritenour, Normandy, Wellston, Ferguson and Hancock, he declared. The Maplewood coach said these schools maintained their schedules were full, then later scheduled games with non-league teams.

It was Wahlbrink'es assertion that Clayton, University City and Kirkwood, three other large schools in the County League, were also unable to arrange games with smaller schools of the circuit. All of Maplewood's six games were with Clayton, University City and Kirkwood, meeting each school twice.

County League officials will take the case under advisement.

Ferguson closed its County League season last night by defeating Jennings, 34 to 24. Joe Hall, Ferguson forward, was high scorer with 17 points. Ferguson trailed until the final quarter.

In another County League game, Wellston won from Hancock, 35 to 21, on the Hancock floor. The Wellston offensive drive was led by Van Loon, forward, who accounted for 11 points.

Webtser Groves and University City High were victors in other high school games. Webster trimmed Normandy, 23 to 17, at Normandy, while University City took a fast game from East St. Louis High on the University City High floor, 33-20.

C. B. C. Is Eliminated From Prep League Basket Race, Losing to Junior Billikens

By Robert W. Herr

Playing in championship form, St. Louis U. High spiked C. B. C.'s chances of capturing the Prep League basketball title by trouncing the Brothers, 22-9, in a league game at the St. Louis gym last night. The defeat, which was something of an upset, gives McBride High the championship of the league.

The St. Louis U. High tossers, bolstered by the return of Joe Connors, star guard, and the playing of Madden, a substitute forward, made their best showing of the year, outclassing the Brothers in every department. Jumping to the fore at the very outset the Junior Billikens retained their advantage throughout and gradually drew away to a substantial lead, as their tight defense had C. B. C. helpless in the second half.

Johnny Corcoran, the individual star for the Brothers, got his team off to a momentary lead in the first minute of play, when he sank a free throw, but the advantage was not held for long, as Cullen put St. Louis to the fore with two free throws immediately after, and the Blue and White were never passed thereafter. Padberg followed with a free throw and field goals by Shea and Madden gave St. Louis a six-point margin before Davis counted on a charity toss for C. B. C., and the Junior Bills led, 7-2, at the first quarter.

Madden Plays Fine Game.

Coming to life in the second quarter, after a field goal by Madden had put them farther in the rear, the Brothers staged a short rally. Lamb sank a pretty shot from the field and Duvfc dropped in a nice basket from the corner of the court, followed by a free throw, and the C. B. C. five threatened to draw abreast and pass the pace setting Junior Bills. The effort fell short, however, and St. Louis pulled away, Connors counting from the field as the half ended, to make the score 11-7.

Things brightened up considerably for C. B. C. when Corcoran sank a field goal from midfloor at the start of the second half, but Connors duplicated the feat with another toss from the center of the court, and from then on the Brothers were out of it. A charity shot by Padberg, a pretty one-handed flip from the field by Cullen, another field goal by Padberg, and the Blue and White led 18-9 as the final period began.

The contest became a rough and tumble affair in the last quarter, but C. B. C. could not find the rim and failed to score, while the St. Louis five was adding two free throws by Vollmer and a field goal by Cullen to its total, to bring the count to 22-9 as the game ended.

Madden, starting his first league contest, played a great game for St. Louis, as did Cullen at forward and Padberg at guard. Corcoran at forward and McHenry at guard were outstanding for C. B. C.

The final games in the City High School Basketball League are fraught with championship possibilities as Soldan, the leader, plays Beaumont, the challenger, on the Cleveland court, and Roosevelt, tied with Beaumont, meets Cleveland on the Roosevelt floor, tonight at 8 p. m.

Since Beaumont and Roosevelt are in second place one game behind the pace-setting Soldan five, a victory for both the former schools will throw the final honors into a deadlock between the three schools, each having won six of the eight games.

Although Beaumont may be able to rise to the occasion and reverse the form sheets, it is probable that Soldan will win its first title since the Michigan Trophy was put into competition eight years ago.

The North Siders are not in the best physical condition, as Mike Barnhouse, a forward, is out of the lineup due to an injured ankle, and the availability of Art "Moose" Holtman, a guard, is questionable. Holtman wrenched his back in the game with Cleveland earlier in the week and may be forced out of the contest.

Soldan is in excellent shape, having put in some strenuous scrimmage sessions at Sherman Park gymnasium for the past few days. The regular lineup of Levy and Gelber, forwards; Hellmich, center, and Capt. Joyce and Cook, guards, will only be replaced in the event of an overwhelming score against Beaumont. The first meeting of the two quintets resulted in a 37 to 15 victory for the West Enders.

Roosevelt is a decided favorite over the last place Cleveland five. The team standings:

| | W. | L. | Pct. | If They Win. | If They Lose. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Soldan | 6 | 1 | .857 | .875 | .750 |
| Beaumont | 5 | 2 | .714 | .750 | .625 |
| Roosevelt | 5 | 2 | .714 | .750 | .625 |
| Central | 2 | 6 | .250 | | |
| Cleveland | 0 | 7 | .000 | .125 | .000 |

Previous scores:
Soldan 37, Beaumont 15.
Roosevelt 29, Cleveland 13.

Pat Cooney and Stolsek Box in Feature Tonight

Four special events and at least a half dozen preliminary bouts will provide the fistic amusement at the Knights of Columbus gymnasium, Washington place and State street, East St. Louis, tonight as the K. C. A. C. holds its regular monthly amateur leather-pushing carnival. The first bout is scheduled for 8:30 p. m.

Intercity bouts will feature with St. Louis, East St. Louis and Springfield fighters holding the spotlight as they did three weeks ago, when the Knights staged a show which drew the largest crowd that ever witnessed an amateur event on the East Side. Stars of Eddie Barth's K. C. A. C. stables will do battle with the Springfield and St. Louis warriors.

Pat Cooney, hard-hitting middleweight, will meet Frank Stolsek, East Side A. C., Springfield, in the main event on the program. Ed "Skip" Hennessy, welterweight, meets Van Collins, Springfield; Fred "Tex" Saunders battles Jackie Davis, ace of the Springfield boys, in a featherweight duel, and Nathan Crystal, lightweight, clashes with Al Meyers of the South Broadway A. C.

A record entry for the preliminaries is expected since the Knights' show affords the amateurs their last chance for actual competition before the championship tournament at the New Coliseum, Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights.

The entry list for tonight's fights follows:

CHICAGO WHEAT CLOSES UNSETTLED, CORN LOWER

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 2.—Selling to anticipate any likelihood of a bearish showing Monday as to farm reserve stocks of wheat tended to ease wheat prices down a little today after early upturns. Action of the wheat market at Winnipeg today was also a bearish influence, and so too was selling from sources Southwest. There was likewise some selling of wheat into store here, and export demand today for wheat from North America again turned slack.

Wheat closed unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to ⅜c lower, corn ¼c to ¾c off, oats ¼c to 1c down, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 15c.

With foreign buying a factor, wheat prices averaged higher today in the early dealings.

Many traders gave special attention to current talk about possible bullish effects of the presidential inaugural address and of chances of crop reversals outside United States. Opening unchanged to ⅛c higher, Chicago wheat held near to initial figures. Corn, oats and provisions displayed firmness also, with corn starting unchanged to ¼c up, but subsequently easing somewhat.

Leading wheat trade authorities here said today the presidential inaugural address was being awaited with intense interest in anticipation of some definite statement of policy regarding grain marketing and that big speculative buying of the last two months was largely based on belief that it would pay to carry wheat through the present crop season in view of chances of big damage developing. In this connection, dry soil conditions in Canada were stressed as beginning to assume important proportions.

Latest advices today about Canadian moisture conditions said precipitation in the chief wheat producing region of Canada was officially reported at half of normal.

FINANCIAL NOTES

NEW YORK, March 2.—Continuing the advance of the past week, copper prices today were marked up another quarter of a cent a pound to 19¾ cents for export and 19½ cents domestic, a cent and a half rise for the week. The domestic price is for deliveries to the end of June.

All sections of the country except the South report business in electrical equipment as above or equal to the average of recent years, with the demand for apparatus coming from both the power industry and industrial plants, says Electrical World. Orders for transformers and switching have been substantial in the East.

Commercial failures this week, as reported to R. G. Dun & Co. increased to 537 compared with 516 in the corresponding 1928 week. Inasmuch as there were only five business days in last week, no satisfactory comparison can be made with that period. The increase occurred entirely in the East.

A cotton mill merger involving five New England concerns with annual output valued at $20,000,000 has been proposed, Wall street hears.

Dun's Weekly Review

NEW YORK, March 2.—Dun's review today says:

"As was expected, two months of the new year have added substantially to the constructive elements in the general business situation. The net result has been plainly favorable, and the continued unevenness of conditions, with some disappointing aspects, is a wholly natural phase. Simultaneous progress in all lines, and in the same degree, would be an economic phenomenon, and its absence now does not obscure the fact that the main trend is upward. That movement has attained particular vigor in steel and copper, where accentuated buoyancy prevails, and a strengthening of the markets for these commodities has been a logical concomitant of the expanding demands. Competition for orders keeps prices in various channels on a comparatively low basis, yet advances almost balance declines in Dun's comprehensive list, and it has been the exception, as in hides and leather, where pressure to sell has been sufficiently pronounced to cause conspicuous weakness. Even in those instances, an abatement of depression has developed recently. It is a feature of most textile divisions, moreover, that a large production is passing steadily into consumption, and in certain cases difficulty is being experienced in obtaining supplies as quickly as they are needed.

Weekly bank clearings $13,225,740,000, an increase of 26.7 per cent over a year ago.

Weekly Butter Review.

CHICAGO, March 2.—An interesting feature of the butter market at present is the relatively good demand for lower grades.

On all the butter markets, the undergrades are well cleaned up, and prices on these lower scores have advanced, thus narrowing the price range between the top and bottom scores. Buyers on most markets are finding it increasingly difficult to supply needs of medium and lower grades, and in many instances are willing to take storage goods at the same price as fresh.

Scantiness of supplies of the cheaper grades has permitted withdrawal of considerable butter of medium quality from the freezers, and throughout the week there has been a fairly satisfactory movement of butter out of storage.

Meanwhile, near approach of the season when increases of butter production can be expected discloses that opinions as to the make of butter in the immediate future vary widely. Some large creamery organizations are predicting a very light make during March, with relatively high prices. Other large manufacturers, however, say the volume produced in March will favorably compare with if not exceed that of a year ago.

NEW YORK, March 2.—George H. Howard, New York corporation lawyer and director in 15 corporations, has been elected president of United Corporation, $150,000,000 public utility stock holding corporation recently organized by J. P. Morgan & Co., Drexel & Co. and Bonbright Co.

United Corporation has taken steps to acquire 500,000 shares of capital stock of United Gas Improvement Co. of Philadelphia, in which it already holds a stock interest. This acquisition will bring United Corporation's holdings to somewhat more than 20 per cent of the outstanding capital stock of United Gas Improvement.

United Corporation also holds a minority interest in the common stock of Public Service Corporation of New Jersey and second preferred, common stock and option warrants of Mohawk Hudson Power Co. Blocks of common stock in other public utilities have been recently acquired, it was announced.

Cuba's Sugar Production.

HAVANA, March 2.—Sugar production in Cuba up to March 1 was approximately 2,500,000 tons, according to an estimate by the Cuban Association of Sugar Growers and planters. With hte exception of extensive cane field fires in Camaguey and Santiago provinces, grinding and harvesting have been normal. Climatic conditions are favorabel except for lack of rain.

Formation of a national institute in which virtually all activities of the sugar business would be concentrated, was proposed to President Machado by Dr. Mario Diaz Cruz, an attorney.

The institute would be sole seller of sugar and molasses as well as purchasing agent for the sugar industry. Another project presented favored retention of 1,000,000 tons of sugar in warehouses until a price of 2¼ cents could be obtained.

KICK IN THE FACE STOPS ROBBER IN HOLDUP IN AUTO

Two highwaymen attempted to board the automobile of Charles Kron, undertaker, 2707 North Grand boulevard, as he made a boulevard stop at Spring avenue and Delmar boulevard, at 7 a. m. today.

The Hildebrands reside at 2837 Edgar avenue, St. Louis County.

7 DRY AGENTS SHOOT IT OUT WITH 10 ALLEGED BOOTLEGGERS

By the Associated Press.

TAMPA, Fla., March 2.—Five men, one of them wounded, are under arrest in connection with a running fight between prohibition officers and alleged liquor runners Thursday night in which three of the dry men were wounded, one probably fatally. Those arrested are Lester M. Winnersville, Islam Saffold of Wimauma, Red Roberts and L. P. Holland of Gulfport, picked up at St. Petersburg, and Owen Taylor, shot through the abdomen and taken in custody at a hospital here. All are charged with assault with attempt to murder and five others are being sought.

Haston Taylor, Federal prohibition officer of Tampa, is in a critical condition with a bullet through his left lung. M. C. Hendrix, chief of the Tampa Federal dry forces, and J. O. Stewart were less seriously wounded. Seven prohibition men and 10 alleged bootleggers shot it out. Two of the prohibition men arranged through a ruse to buy the liquor for $1700, and while it was being transported to a spot for the agreed delivery two other officers halted it.

TULLY TELLS the truth about Hollywood

IN the Sunday Magazine of the Post-Dispatch tomorrow you will find the first of a fascinating series of searching articles on famous movie stars, written by Jim Tully, one-time tramp, vigorous writer and critic.

Mr. Tully has no illusions about Hollywood's inhabitants. He pays tribute to genuine ability where he sees it, but he is not deluded by press agentry. His critical eyes see through the glamour and glitter which surround the popular personages he describes, and where he finds artificialities, he is not gentle. The result is a series of live, vital and highly interesting articles which reveal the exalted entertainers of the screen as they really are.

EMIL JANNINGS, German star, discussed in Jim Tully's first article tomorrow.

The first article will discuss Emil Jannings, the German genius whose artistic triumphs have won him the name of being the greatest character actor of the screen. Tully will tell the story of Jannings' life, describe his unique facial characteristics which allow him such a wide range of expression, and the years of training which have given him a background possessed by few actors. After reading this sketch, you will have a more intimate picture of the German star than you ever had before. You will know his personality, his talents and philosophies.

You will enjoy reading the story of Emil Jannings tomorrow—and you'll follow the entire series with equal interest. They will appear every Sunday only in the Sunday Magazine of the Post-Dispatch.

What a Woman Should Do When Husband Gets Drunk

By MARGUERITE MARTYN

LETTERS of advice to "Miserable Mother" continue to come in but most of them are reiterations of the same theme—pray for him.

Miserable Mother's problem as stated in her letter printed on this page some days ago is a husband who gives himself up to drinking "at least 48 hours every week". Her appeal was for answers to several questions: Should she leave her once happy and comfortable home, taking her four small children with her? Is it better that the children should be deprived of material advantages rather than live in a demoralizing atmosphere? Should she abandon her husband knowing that but for her remaining influence he would give himself up completely to his weakness, whereas now between sprees he is loving, contrite and promises to make amends? How could she make him see the error of his ways?

Following are some responses from our readers inspired by sympathy for Miserable Mother. They may not suggest more practical solutions than those previously printed but are selected as variations from the one repeated prescription, spiritual recourse.

Miserable Mother:

Take a leaf from my book. Don't be so gentle and long-suffering. Patience sometimes ceases to be a virtue, you know. Let him know that the minute he comes in one door drunk, you and the children go out the other, no matter where. Leave him alone with his beloved booze or let him go out and get tanked up with his friends. He is pretty sure to come home to roost sooner or later.

Let him know, too, that you are not going to give up your rights in your home; that you are dependent upon him, not he on you. Always come back IF and WHEN he is sober again. Don't let him know where you are. Telephone. If after a reasonable time he hasn't sobered up wait until he can assure you it is safe for you to return. Then go home and clean up the awful mess he has been living in. He will get as tired of those messed up week-ends as you do. After a while he will learn you are not so patient and dependable as he thought; that it is possible you don't love him as much when he is drunk as when he is sober; that home and comfort and security are as easily discarded as, say, taking a drink of whisky. Then he may think more than once before he imbibes.

Put a price on your love even though you may think it is above price.

I know whereof I speak. I had a secret refuge for a year or more. It is my secret yet where I spent those week-ends. I have never acknowledged that they were miserable week-ends, either. (I could not be writing this now if he were not out on his business territory.) I always made it a point to come back cheerful, not crabby or complaining but not showing that I was too glad to get back, either.

I don't have to take those vacations any more. It may be just because he is older and more settled, but nowadays you cannot pry him loose from his easy chair, his slippers and his pipe unless I am in the mood to go out with him. I even keep a cellaret fairly well stocked right under his nose but he knows that one drop too much and out I go with the children and all those things for which he is dependent upon me.

Another thing. I fixed up a cozy den for him where he could get away from me and the two noisy youngsters when he felt like it. With a card table in it where he could entertain his friends. He has changed it into a workshop. At first he used to hammer away like mad, as if in defiance of baser temptations. But now he gets really fascinated with producing things with his own hands.

A ONCE MISERABLE MOTHER.

* * *

To Miserable Mother:

Shortly after my marriage I smelled whisky. I asked "Why?" He replied: "I have to trade or do business with certain men."

I was scared. I had seen my mother plead, threaten and hang around my father's neck begging him not to drink any today. He would promise. Liar. A fine man at other times. I had learned in childhood words did did no good. I decided to act.

We were horseback riding when I started toward a strange house. He asked where I was going and I said, "To get some pupils to teach. I can't use money you have to earn through whisky." I was successful.

We had been married nine years and had two boys 6 and 7 and a month old baby girl. It started again. One thing was clear. He must support the children. I could have, I think, but that would not be best for him.

Then I didn't want to leave my home. Neither did I want him to have the least excuse for leaving. Therefore, my plan. I took the stand of treating him as an acquaintance whose good will I still wanted, but nothing closer. When meals were ready. I managed to eat before or after he did. When he left home or returned I was absent from the room. In company I was friendly, kept up appearance but absolutely avoided being alone with him. I shied from the least semblance of a quarrel.

As time passed I became surer of myself. I was still keeping a home, doing my duty as a wife, not threatening or bluffing. One night in sober earnest he asked for an understanding. In great good humor I asked him if he would care to be around me when I acted like this. Then, having rehearsed it many times in my mind, I gave as good an imitation as I could of himself when in various degrees of intoxication. Before I was through he was begging me to stop. I knew then I was in position to make terms upon which I would resume old relationships.

I find poise and reserve help a lot in married life. The will that is the stronger usually conquers. Don't live with whisky though. It and happiness never reside together. In all friendliness,

A WIFE AND MOTHER.

Dear Sob Sister:

I rush to the aid of despairing wife whose husband gets drunk once in a while.

First, if he drinks too much of the present-day compound, and if he has any life insurance, don't worry; you will soon be a charming widow, living on the proceeds of a drunkard's thoughtfulness.

Second, take a look around the premises. See if there is not too much varnish and not enough liberty. See if there is not too much Martha and not enough Mary. See if you are not too superior. If you do not do about everything with the idea that "I think this is the way he should think it ought to be done." Take this to yourself good and hard. Isn't there a little too much efficiency in the atmosphere?

Third, loosen up the straps. Show up in a pink negligee once in a while, even at the expense of some dust in the bedroom corners. He may begin to ruminate on what a peach you are. Or he may be relieved to go back to the woman on the other side of the table in the clean, neat-patterned cotton print and the clean kiddies alongside.

You just don't leave him unless all these attractive things go with you.

Then, "Miserable Mother," get a copy of Helen Rowland's Seek the Woman in Monday's Post-Dispatch. It is as refreshing as a shower in a dusty, thirsty land. You women have a great big order in life and, thank God, most of you fill it sensibly.

W. E. LANSDOWNE.

FORETASTE OF SPRING FASHIONS

The "bow" ensemble of jersey with incrustations of self material. A frock of turquoise flat crepe with a scarf collar and full skirt. A tailored frock of blue Shantung with the new narrow collar.

NEW YORK.

THE smart world is creating spring and summer fashions. Cables from Paris inform us daily of each successive presentation of the collections of the famous couturiers. And the clothes that smart American women are demanding for resort wear and for Northern wear under top coats do much to indicate just which of the regal dictates will be fulfilled.

Paris cables "fullness begins between hip and knee" and America signifies its acceptance by the appearance of an extremely chic afternoon dress of turquoise flat crepe. It is opened all the way down the left side and has circular fullness applied low on the skirt. Its neck is finished with a long scarf collar.

Chic America already has discovered just how charming and practical jersey can be. And it is extremely probable that that is the reason why Paris has chosen this fabric for many new sports costumes. The new London Trades collection includes many ensembles of jersey with short cardigans and with incrustations of self fabric. A very smart London Trades model of this type, already in America, was chosen in bright red for Northern wear under a top coat and in white for resort wear. Its corsage and short cardigan are perfectly plain and its skirt is trimmed with bow incrustations and with inverted pleats.

Another material used in the French collections that is in demand in New York at present for resort costumes is lightweight tweed in white and pastel colors.

The V neckline finished with a narrow collar originated in Paris and has been seen on numbers of successful frocks worn in America. It is tailored and yet retains femininity, especially when a soft bow is worn at the point of the V. One lovely frock chosen by a blonde debutante is of steel blue shantung with a chic little collar, cuffs and belt of white crepe de chine. Its corsage is long and rather snug and its skirt is box pleated all around.

It is apparent that American women will eagerly accept the tailored ensembles of jersey and tweed trimmed with crepe de chine or with incrustations of self material and that the afternoon dresses with skirt fullness between hip and knee will be popular. Just which of the other French novelties will be popular will be decided within the next few weeks.

DANNY SEES THE LAST OF THE STRANGER

Pity those who strive to gain
Safety, knowing it is vain.
—Danny Meadow Mouse.

* * *

DANNY MEADOW MOUSE had darted back into the opening to his tunnel, then had turned around and now was peeking out. Danny had had a very good reason for darting back. He had had an extremely good reason for darting back. He had seen what the stranger whom he was chasing had not seen. He had seen what appeared like two shadows—one in the air and the other on the snow—both moving. One really was a shadow. The other was Spooky the Screech Owl. As Spooky flew above his shadow seemed to fly along on the snow.

"Spooky will get him," thought Danny. "I've just had a fight with him, but I don't hate him enough to want him to be caught. Yet there isn't anything I can do." Then he began to say under his breath, "Run, run, run!" just as if the stranger could hear him.

The stranger was running. He was running with all his might. Danny guessed that he had discovered who was after him. Suddenly Spooky swooped. Spooky missed. Danny was glad. Yes, sir, Danny was glad. In spite of the fact that only a few minutes before he had been fighting that stranger with all his might, he was glad when Spooky missed. You see, the stranger had dodged.

But Spooky dodged too. Looking at Spooky when he is sitting still, you wouldn't think he could turn in the air as quickly as he can. He turned and swooped again. Once more the stranger dodged successfully. Once more Spooky turned and was back after the fleeing mouse.

"Run, run, run!" squeaked Danny.

The stranger was running. He didn't need to be told to run. He had no desire to find the way down Spooky's throat. Danny could just imagine how he felt.

"Oh, dear!" thought Danny. "He has taken the wrong direction now. If he had run straight for the old stone wall he would have been safe. Why didn't he keep on the way he was headed? I declare, he's coming straight back here now!"

It was true. The strange Meadow Mouse was headed straight back. You see, when he dodged he had to go in some new direction and he hadn't been able to keep on toward the old stone wall. Had there been any openings down under the snow, he would have been all right. But there were none. The nearest hole that that strange Meadow Mouse knew of was the one that Danny was peeping out from and watching him.

"Spooky will get him," thought Danny.

Danny saw him coming and he was a little dismayed. He wondered what he should do now. If that stranger should come back, would he, Danny, drive him out again? But the stranger didn't come back. He was halfway there when once more Spooky swooped. This time Spooky flew away and he carried with him the strange Mouse. Yes, sir, he carried with him the strange Mouse. Danny was both sorry and glad. Of course, he was sorry that the stranger was caught. At the same time, he was glad that he was not going to have any further trouble with that stranger.

There was a squeaky voice just below Danny. It was the voice of Nanny Meadow Mouse. "Has the stranger gone?" squeaked Nanny.

Danny scrambled down beside her. "Yes, my dear," said he, "the stranger has gone."

"Is he likely to come back?" inquired Nanny.

"No," replied Danny, "no, I don't think we'll ever see him again. I think he has gone away for good."

"For whose good?" Nanny asked.

"For the good of all concerned excepting himself," replied Danny, and he wouldn't say a word more.

Angora Tricot Hat

The spring tricot hat is of angora, the brim turning back from the face and sweeping down at the sides. This is shown as well in wool jersey.

RANDOM NOTES

"FASHIONS are notoriously fickle, but every few years there arises a vogue for physical culture founded partly on esthetic grounds, but largely on the fallacy that our good health has some relation to the size of our muscles and that violent muscular exertion is a valuable antidote to the poisonous properties of mental effort."—Sir Farquhar Buzzard.

Sir Farquhar Buzzard is a well-known London consultant, and his view of exercise and physical culture here presented seems to be confirmatory of certain opinions of my own expressed in these columns. I suppose Sir Farquhar does not mean that exercise is not healthy, nor does he mean that he disapproves of exercise. But he does mean that there is no certain amount of exercise that is proper for all people, that robust people need more than thin, easily fatigued people. And certainly exercise is not an open sesame to good health and long life.

"Cows are being fed on seaweed on an Illinois farm on theory that the milk they give would cure goiter." But the report that a sufferer from chronic headaches is feeding her cow aspirin in order to obtain the necessary drug in the milk appears to be unfounded, as does the news item that a certain sanitarium for nervous invalids is feeding its cows bromides in order to give the patients medical treatment and nourishment at the same time.

"A recent Government report estimates that about one-third of all operations performed in the United States are for the removal of tonsils. The rate has increased five to ten fold since 1910."—Rhoads and Dick, in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

"A premature announcement of dissolution." This is the heading under which Dr. Roland G. Breuer of Haddam, Kan., writes as follows: "Some 20 years ago it was noted that the country doctor was rapidly dying out. Today it is still being noted that he is rapidly dying out. But something seems to be keeping this expiring fossil alive and I believe I know the thing which has prolonged the existence of the country doctor and which will continue to prolong it for an indefinite time to come. Circumstances placed the writer in the midst of a country practice—a little village of 400 souls out on the plains of Kansas. . . . A six month's pilgrimage through Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Utah, Nevada, Texas, Arizona and California demonstrated that this locality is typical of any country practice." It is comforting to know that Dr. Breuer does not believe that the country doctor is in danger of extinction.

Leftover Veal on Toast

Cut the leftover veal roast into cubes and simmer for ten minutes in a sauce made of one tablespoon butter and one tablespoon flour browned together and then a cup of milk stirred in slowly. When nice and smooth add three chopped hard-boiled eggs, one teaspoon lemon juice, salt and pepper and cook for five minutes longer. Add one tablespoon sherry and serve over slices of toast.

Simple Science for Everybody

By Colin G. Welles, Ph. D.

COLDER THAN ICE

WHAT is colder than ice and takes less room?

If you don't know, you have only to ask an up-to-date ice cream company and it will tell you—"carbon dioxide snow."

It is so cold, this carbon dioxide snow, that it freezes your fingers so hard that they feel burned in a second, if you touch it. And it has the great advantage of never melting into water, like ordinary ice. It melts—but by evaporating into air.

So these up-to-date ice cream companies pack their ice cream in carbon dioxide snow, which takes scarcely any room at all, instead of in tubs of salted ice, and the ice cream can be shipped away from the factory in small packages. It stays frozen so hard (while the snow is unevaporated) that you can't even cut it. You are obliged to wait a half an hour or so, until the cream softens.

The carbon-dioxide snow is made from carbon dioxide gas which is put under a very great pressure, pushing down 1000 pounds per square inch.

With all this weight pressing it down into a tank, the gas is suddenly let out through small holes about one-quarter of an inch across. Squeezed through these little holes by this heavy pressure it is allowed to spray out into big tanks. This turns it into snow, because whenever any gas which has been held under pressure is allowed to spread out quickly, it cools very fast. Let all of the air out of a tire and it is cool on your hand, but pump it into a tire and it is warm.

So the carbon dioxide gas which is permitted to escape after staying in its tight quarters under 1000 pounds per square inch, cools so quickly that it turns into very cold snow—109 degrees below zero.

Later the snow is shoveled out of the tanks and packed into convenient blocks. Whenever a small piece is needed it is cut from the block with a saw, wrapped in a bit of paper and packed around the ice cream.

The ice cream companies say it costs more to make carbon dioxide snow than it does to freeze artificial ice, but it is very convenient and a piece lasts for at least six hours. And so many of the companies are using it.

A Handy Suggestion

It sometimes happens that one would like to finish a bit of sewing or run up a rent in a hurry, but where the machine stands it is too dark to see, and it is such a job to move it where a good light may be obtained. At such a time why not make use of the flashlight? Just turn it on and place it on the machine so the light will clearly show the needle and enable you to do the sewing which will require only a few minutes.

Old Print Portfolios

IT always pleases us to see the secretary open, with smart accessories for writing at hand, as though one had hosts of correspondents who must be written to at once.

This gesture, however, carries with it the need for neatness at the desk. Travel-stained envelopes, bills fluttering about, the dog-eared checkbook are best concealed in one of those clever new file pockets that have made their appearance in many attractive designs.

Perhaps the most interesting are those carrying authentic old prints mounted on the outside cover. We understand there is a man about town who haunts old shops, buying and discarding hundreds of prints in order to possess the few antiques the collection contains. Some of these prints date back to 1563 and represent most interesting old-fashioned subjects. These he mounts on folders that match them, and when the portfolio is finished it is not only a clever indexed container for the odds and ends of the family desk, but a worth while object of art as well.

The King of Vegetables

No vegetable combines quite so many beneficial qualities as does spinach, and if the ways of preparing it are varied, it may be served several times a week. Serve it plain with butter, salt, pepper and hard-boiled eggs. It may also be served with a sprinkling of cheese instead of the egg. Or try putting it through the grinder and reheating in white sauce. Or chop it finely and then remove from pan and in the pan fry chopped bacon until very crisp. Return spinach to pan and stir until the bacon is all through it and the spinach is hot.

CHAPTER TWELVE.

"Do-Si-Do"

WITH the dawn, Felicia had become ominously calm, and Dick, watching her while they listened to Ann's story of the kidnaping, wished that she would return to her hysteria. Her face was drained of color; against its transparent pallor her eyes were dark like holes.

Dr. Tom was talking to two plain clothes men in the living room below; Peg was getting J. B. on the telephone.

"We'd better get hold of Alex first." It was Felicia's voice, devoid of all expression. She sat, still clutching the little pillow, still in her dance frock of green chiffon.

Mr. Brett, the hotel clerk told them, had checked out the evening before. No, he had left no forwarding address, but the clerk understood he was returning to the East.

Felicia received that news without comment.

J. B. arrived, subdued into amazing sobriety. There seemed nothing to do, yet they had to do something. Dick went out with J. B., to venture below the line, into Reno's "wide-open" quarter, to see if there they could trace the kidnapers.

"Darling, won't you lie down? Wont you"—— Ann Hodge looked at Felicia sympathetically.

She shook her head.

Dr. Tom came in, the bruise on his cheek grotesquely brilliant with mercurochrome. "Better drink some coffee, Felicia—Peg's getting it ready."

Felicia only looked at him—with eyes that seemed blind.

It was a bright morning, golden sunlight poured warmly through the windows. Somewhere, in the mounting heat of this summer day little Alex, in pajamas and bare feet, was crying for her. . . .

A child shouted outside and Felicia screamed. Relief brightened Ann's face as the girl gave way to hysteria. Like a nurse attending a helpless baby, she undressed her and tucked her into bed.

What could they do? What was there to do?

Dick and J. B. returned, and Felicia seized a dressing gown and hurried down the stairs, her eyes beseeching them for news.

Dick shook his head.

"Look here, doctor," J. B. addressed Tom Hodge suddenly. "Could Mr. Nevada help? Would he?"

Dr. Tom nodded. "God knows, if anyone can do anything he can." But there was little hope in his grave face. "You can't get him by telephone, so there's no use trying. Take Dick's car and run down there." And then, as if to himself, as J. B. hurried out, "His millions against Brett's, and back of it all—divorce . . . and the one person hurt—the boy."

Dick was sitting beside Felicia on the couch, his arm about her; looking straight ahead. She did not seem conscious that he even existed.

Mr. Nevada, the doctor told Dick, was the most powerful man in the State. He had a real name, but few people bothered to use it. Politician, financier, business man, he was Nevada's wealthiest and most distinguished citizen. He owned most of the resorts, controlled a lion's share of the mines, knew everyone, in every rank of life. And he would be able to work through channels unknown even to the police.

"If only he'll do it!" Peg sighed.

Felicia looked at her with dulled eyes, and Dick, stroking her cold hand, realized for the first time the intensity of a woman's love for her child.

He had never hated Brett. He had even been a little sorry for him. But now he felt that there was nothing in life he would like so much as to sink his fingers into that flabby throat and press until the disdainful face grew black, the cruel eyes bulged.

With no proof, no clue of any sort, yet there was no doubt in anyone's mind that Brett was the instigator of this horror:

The telephone bell jangled. It was J. B.

"Mr. Nevada's at Carson City. I'm driving there. I'll call again as soon as I get in touch with him."

The door bell. Two more plainclothesmen—there are no uniformed police in Reno—and a State policeman.

They questioned Felicia—had Brett ever threatened to take the child?

Like an automaton, she answered them, while across the mountainside, where little Alex lay, an old man with streaming white hair, picked his way slowly to Virginia City.

Ragged and dirty though he was, intelligence gleamed in his clear eyes. Through the blurr of his white beard, his mouth was sensitive, well formed.

He was a Desert Rat, one of the dozens of half-mad or merely broken-hearted denizens of the barren spaces. His shoes were worn through although the pockets of his sagging coat bulged with several thousand dollars worth of precious and semi-precious stones picked up in the wastes.

A faint sound arrested him. His eyes strained ahead. Then, with amazing swiftness, he darted forward. There was a swish, a thud, as his heavy stick struck squarely upon the head of the sidewinder shifting to strike.

The Desert Rat had seen many strange things between the dawns and sunsets that had tolled the passing of his life, yet there was wonder in his face as he lifted the child in his arms and unbound the handkerchief that stilled the trembling lips. He did not see many children and he gazed upon this boy as though he were a curiosity.

"Where did you come from?" he asked.

Little Alex sobbed out his terror against the thin shoulder. Whoever this strange creature might be, his voice was gentle and his hands were kind.

Interrupted by gulps and choked sobbing, the child told his story as best he could.

"And what's your name, Sonny?"

"Alex."

"Alex? Alex what? What's your daddy's name?"

"My father's Alexander Brett."

With a sudden relaxation of his sinewy arms the Rat let Alex slide none too gently to the ground. A look of hatred distorted the sunbrowned features.

"Good God, it can't be!" he muttered. "This boy's too young! Alexander Brett must be 70!"

The child whimpered, then was silent. The sound of a falling stone clattered ominously close.

A dark face appeared over the ledge of rock and the Desert Rat looked up into the glittering muzzle of an automatic.

Cooking the Oatmeal

OF course oatmeal constitutes your breakfast frequently during the cold weather. So many people prefer the old-fashioned oatmeal to the newer quick-cooking variety but use the latter because the time for preparing breakfast is usually limited.

If you have a fireless cooker you probably use this for cooking the oatmeal, but even if you are not the fortunate possessor of this commodity you can serve the oatmeal as the family likes it. The night before sprinkle the oats into salted boiling water as usual and let it cook thoroughly a couple of minutes. Cover tightly and place it in the coal range, then close the oven door. Fix the fire for the night, shutting off the draughts and when you get up in the morning place the cereal on top of the stove to get sufficiently hot to be served.

If you do not keep an overnight fire, cook the cereal in the double-boiler during the evening. Pour a little cold water over the top to prevent a crust, and let it stand over night.

Washing the Scarf.

The scarf so often completes milady's costume this season — but it must always be spotless. Make a suds of warm water and a pure white soap. Dip the scarf in and squeeze gently until all soil has disappeared. Do not rub at all. Rinse in several waters and pin on a clean ironing board over which spread a clean sheet. Just before it is dry iron under a clean white cloth.
